SCRAP BUMPERS—Mrs. Mark Bolding and R. S. Robertson really mean business in the scrap drive. Wooden bumpers built by Robertson replaced the metal ones on Mrs. Bolding's car. The steel will go to the newspapers' scrap drive and be sent to run down the Japs or Germans.

Wood Replaces Steel As Matron Donates Bumpers for Scrap

Lots of folks think of giving automobile bumpers to the newspapers' scrap drive, but Mrs. Mark Bolding and R. S. Robertson did something about it.

Citizens Eager To Give 'All' In Scrap Drive

Enthusiastic residents of Fulton and DeKalb counties are getting together their Sunday best for the newspapers' scrap drive which gets under way next week.

Big stuff—a 1,200-pound safe, furnaces which run to tons, radiators, tennis court backstops—is what Atlantans want to throw at the Germans and Japanese.

Tons of Metal.

"We're planning to play tennis after the war," one caller said, "but we're not worrying about that now, so how 'bout sending out for the iron backstops. Must be a couple of tons of metal in them."

"I've got a big furnace out here and I want to know what to do with it—rather, how I'm going to get it to the scrap heap," a woman declared.

Collection of scrap in this three-week campaign, headed by The Constitution and Journal, will start Monday.

Wrecking crews will be sent around to dismantle the heavier pieces for transportation to the scrap heap. Names of those who called will be placed on the list for the wrecking crews, and the scrap will be gathered just as quickly as possible after the actual collection begins Monday.

Pieces of Scrap.

Persons who do have such heavy pieces of scrap or scrap that has to be dismantled or cut up for transportation are urged to send details with their names and addresses to the Scrap Editor at The Constitution or Journal, or to call Walnut 2035.

Arrangements for collecting scrap at schools, homes, plants and every place where scrap exists will be made along lines designed to save tires and gasoline on the trucks.

The details of such organization must be as complete as possible before collections start, and persons with scrap are urged to keep it until the trucks start making their rounds.

School children are being mobilized as leaders in the collection campaign, and students will be awarded buttons for turning up 100 pounds of scrap. Schools will

Threat to Big Allied Port Moresby Base Reduced by Victory

By MURLIN SPENCER.

GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia. Wednesday, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Allied troops in a swelling counter-thrust against the Japanese in New Guinea have recaptured Ioribaiwa Ridge, 32 miles above Port Moresby, and "our advance continues," a communique said today.

The Japanese were reported retreating toward Nauro, ten miles to the north, and piles of equipment they abandoned were seized by the Allied jungle fighters who considerably eased the enemy's pressure on Port Moresby.

The communique said: "Ioribaiwa ridge has been captured by our troops. The enemy is retreating in the direction of Nauro, ten miles to the north. Quantities of supply and equipment were abandoned by him and are in our hands."

Allied troops, the communique added, found that the Japanese had constructed field trenches and barricades in anticipation of the Allied counter-drive.

First Ground Offensive.
In this first Allied ground offensive General MacArthur's troops were using the same deceptive tactics of infiltration and flanking movements which characterized the Japanese advance to Ioribaiwa in a drive which began late in July from Buna, on the northern side of the towering Owen Stanley mountains.

The Allies were supported by 25-pounders, by heavy aerial action, and by shorter supply hauls. At Ioribaiwa the Japanese had been 88 miles from their main base at Buna.

For weeks Allied airmen have been pounding the Japanese jungle supply line, and a spokesman suggested yesterday that these sustained assaults had crippled the striking power of the enemy's ground forces.

In the operations yesterday Allied airmen continued to lend valuable support, attacking enemy rear positions near Menari, destroying six barges and two anti-aircraft positions at Buna, and raiding Salamaua in upper New Guinea with undetermined results.

Casualties List Atlanta Seaman Dead, 2 Missing

One Atlanta man, John Thomas Bond, was listed as dead on the Merchant Marine casualty list made public yesterday and the names of three others from the Atlanta area appeared among those missing.

James Harry Collier and Tom Watson Goodman, of Atlanta, and Claude Davis Powell, of College Park, were the missing seamen. While Bond was home on leave at Christmas, the tanker to which he had been assigned was sunk off New Jersey, and his brother, Aubrey Brewer, an old Navy man himself, urged him to give up, but, though he'd only been in the service a year, Bond liked his job as seaman so well that he wouldn't quit.

Brewer, who shared his home at 733 Hobart avenue with his brother, said he was notified July 25 that Bond was missing and on September 14 that he was "missing, presumed dead."

Bond was a former beautician, having graduated only 18 months ago from the Moler Barber College in Atlanta. In addition to his brother, he is survived by a sister, Mrs. H. H. Seay, of Columbus, Ga., and Brewer's two sons, Aubrey Jr. and James, both in the Navy.

Claude Powell and Tom Goodman served together on the same ship, an oil tanker. Both enlisted in January, 1942, and received their training in the same class at the Merchant Marine school in St. Petersburg, Fla. They set out on their first voyage April 15.

Sinley Ruppensberg, of College Park, enlisted, trained and sailed with Powell and Goodman, and missed being on the lost tanker by a few days, having received sick leave for a tonsillotomy just before they set out on their last trip.

Goodman, 20, is the son of Mrs. Mary Goodman, of 460 Pulliam street. He was a student at Commercial high school when he enlisted. His brother, Lieutenant W. S. Goodman, is stationed at Camp Lee, Va.

When Powell's parents, Mr. and

WHAT AM I OFFERED?—Here the bidding is becoming spirited as Atlantans vied with each other for the pretty lock which Auctioneer Jenkins is holding up for the admiration of the bidders. Germans Sacrifice 2,200 In Vain Stalingrad Attack

Russians Push Flank Attacks To Relieve City

By EDDY GILMORE.

MOSCOW, Wednesday, Sept. 30.—(AP)—The Red army, killing more than 2,200 Germans, beat off all of the main Nazi blows at Stalingrad yesterday, the Soviet high command announced today on the 37th day of siege.

Every Nazi attack in the northwest sector was repulsed during the day, the midnight communique said, and "particularly heavy losses" were suffered by the Germans in an attempt to take a hill site in that critical corner of Stalingrad where the Germans had penetrated on Monday. It is against the northwestern sector of the city that the Germans are making their major assault.

More than 700 Germans lay on the slopes of the hill after the final Nazi assault had subsided late yesterday. A total of 29 Nazi tanks also were destroyed in the sector, which includes a workers' settlement.

Red Flank Attack.

Above the city between the Volga and Don rivers, the Russians still were hammering the German flank in an effort to ease the pressure on Stalingrad's garrison, which fought on from their bomb craters and burned buildings inside the city.

More than 2,000 Germans were killed, and 49 Nazi tanks, 18 guns and 23 mortars were destroyed in the last three days in that sector. Although the Russians did not report any further gains against the German flanks, they reported German prisoners as saying that some Nazi companies were reduced to as few as 16 and 25 men.

The Volga fleet still was using its guns on the Germans above the city and was credited with dispersing or annihilating about two enemy battalions during the day.

At Mzokod, in the mid-Caucasus, the Russians said their troops defending the approaches to the Grozny oil fields, some 50 miles away, had lost ground temporarily.

First Chilly Weather To Begin Fading Today

The first cold spell of the season will begin to fade away this afternoon, Weatherman Glenn Jefferson said yesterday.

This morning will be "quite cool," Jefferson said, but this afternoon will be "slightly warmer." The high temperature yesterday was 63 degrees, and the low was 44.

Both Men, Women Wear Service Stars

All over Georgia—and from coast to coast—the silver service stars of The Constitution are shining out from women's dresses and men's lapels as a proud symbol of loved ones in the service.

Each mail has been filled with orders and a steady procession has filed by the Want Ad desk of this newspaper, as thousands upon thousands have availed themselves of this dignified, thoughtful means of proclaiming that a husband, a son, a father, a brother or some other blood relative is now in the armed services of our country.

Made of sterling silver, simple and chaste in design, The Constitution's service stars are equally suitable for men or women to wear. The Constitution is able to furnish them for 20 cents (plus two cents federal jewelry tax) when they are purchased at the newspaper office; for 25 cents by mail (tax included).

From all sections of the United States, from as far away as Oregon on the Pacific coast, as well as from every section of Atlanta and Georgia, proud and patriotic relatives of soldiers, sailors and marines have sent in their orders—and they continue to come in increasing quantities.

Get your own silver service stars—and wear them with pride for your own loved ones in the armed services!

Several accrediting agencies dropped units of the university system from their approved lists after the dismissal of two educators on charges of Governor Talmadge that they advocated racial coeducation. The educators denied the charges and their dismissal followed revamping of the board of regents by Talmadge.

This action and loss of accredited standing were issues in the recent gubernatorial primary contest between Talmadge and Attorney General Ellis Arnall who won the nomination.

The university president also was reported as expressing the view that "when the new year rolls around the university will be back to its former accredited standing."

President Caldwell Is To See University Through 'Crisis'

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 29.—(AP)—Dr. Harmon Caldwell will continue as president of the University of Georgia to see this "crisis through" instead of accepting a major's commission in the Army, the Red and Black, student publication, reported.

"I feel that it is the patriotic thing for me to accept this commission but I would like to see this university crisis through," the paper quoted Dr. Caldwell as saying.

Veronica Sells Hair and Bonds For $180,000

By CELESTINE SIBLEY.

A blue-eyed, freckle-faced little girl, with a one-year-old baby at home and a husband in the Army, sold a snip of her hair in Atlanta yesterday for $180,000 worth of war bonds.

It was hair from the fabulous head of filmdom's Veronica Lake. The slinky siren of the cinema, whose pale gold, baby-fine tresses, worn well over one eye, are her fortune, grinned cheerfully and gave herself up to the scissor squad at the conclusion of yesterday's "Salute to Our Heroes Luncheon" at the Ansley hotel.

To the end that Uncle Sam has the use of $180,000 and Meyer Regenstien, Atlanta merchant, has an inch-long lock of hair as a memento of his patriotism.

The bidding was made more spirited by the solemn little speech the actress delivered in the straight-from-the-heart manner of a soldier's wife talking to other wives and mothers of soldiers.

"First, we must fight for our world," she told her audience earnestly, "and then we must work to make it a better world."

Her husband, Captain John Detelle, is with the United States Army stationed at Seattle and her baby daughter, Elaine, is at home.

When Miss Lake had finished her little speech—an extemporaneous "few words" of the kind she has been called on to make in nearly a score of American cities in the last few weeks—Chairman Jenkins started the auction.

Joseph Jacob launched the bidding with an offer of $1,000. David Blum boosted it to $2,000 and Mrs. Harry Heintz sent it upward with $5,000 and from then the high coast of Lake hair skyrocketed.

Simon Selig bid $17,000; Jerome

TANKER ABLAZE AT SEA—Torpedoed by an Axis submarine in the Battle of the Atlantic, a United States tanker, afire, sends columns of smoke into the sky. Despite raging flames, the crew was able to bring the blaze under control and the ship was towed to port by a U. S. naval craft. The tanker now is under repair in an east coast shipyard and soon will be back in service.

THE CONSECRATION OF A BISHOP—Surrounded by bishops and clergymen in their robes, John Moore Walker yesterday was consecrated bishop of the Episcopal church of the Atlanta diocese. This is how the scene looked, as the former rector of St. Luke's church stood before the altar he served for 11 years and heard Presiding Bishop Henry St. George Tucker conduct the ritual that handed over to him the authority of the office to which he was elected by the laity and clergy last April. Pontifical splendor marked the ceremonies which were culminated in Walker assuming his bishop's vestments. The new bishop was honored at a luncheon at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Pontifical, Austere Splendor Marks Consecration Of John Moore Walker as Episcopal Diocese Bishop

By FRANK DRAKE.

In a setting of magnificent beauty and austere ritual, John Moore Walker, Macon-born priest who has served as rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church for 11 years, yesterday was consecrated bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Atlanta.

Not since 1917 has there been such a scene in Atlanta—the last time an Episcopal bishop assumed his office here in the dignified, impressive ceremony that goes with consecration.

Before 9 o'clock, as soon as St. Luke's massive doors had swung open, the crowd began assembling to witness Bishop Walker's highest honor, and by 10:30 o'clock, when the solemn procession was scheduled to start, the church was packed beyond overflowing.

Pews Jammed. Every pew was jammed when came the "laying on of hands," that symbolic part of the rite where 10 bishops, including Henry St. George Tucker, presiding bishop of all United States Episcopalians, placed their right hands upon Bishop Walker's head and Bishop Tucker said: "Receive the Holy Ghost, for the office and work of a bishop in the church of God, now committed unto thee by the imposition of our hands; in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen. And remember that thou stir up the grace of God, which is given thee by this imposition of our hands; for God hath not given us the spirit of fear, but of power, and love, and sobriety."

After which, Bishop Walker, who came in dressed in his rochet, placed the remainder of a bishop's raiment upon himself and took communion from Bishop Tucker and then gave communion to his wife, his daughter and his son, who sat nearby to see him consecrated.

People in the church were thrilled and moved by the spectacle, made brilliant by the colorful robes of the various orders of the clergy, by the voices of the choir singing the hymns that Bishop Walker likes best. In the soft light from the candles at the altar and filtering in through the stained-glass windows, the consecration scene was as dramatic as Hollywood could have made it. The age of the ritual, handed down since Christ's day, added to the solemnity.

But the Episcopalians, clergy and laity alike, were not long in laying aside their dignity, once the consecration was over. As the choir and the red and black-robed bishops slowly filed out the church and stopped outside, the people walked out and showered their congratulations on Bishop Walker.

Soldier Asks Blessing. A blond young man, in the uniform of a soldier caught Bishop Walker's hand and asked for a blessing. He knelt on the walk near the church door, and the man who had just received the authority of his office, prayed for him.

In a few minutes, though, all the bishops shed their robes and drove over to the Piedmont Driving Club for lunch. There they and several hundred members of the various Episcopal churches honored Bishop Walker, and except for a few moments of serious talk by Bishop Tucker and Bishop Walker, they laughed and chatted.

William Turpin, of Macon, put on the light touch as master of ceremonies, and he assured everyone that though Bishop Walker was his best and finest friend, there was certainly no worse baseball player in the country when they were boys together.

Extracts From Annual. He also read extracts from the University of Georgia annual, year 1919, which poked fun at the then serious-minded John Moore Walker. Young Walker wouldn't gamble then to see who would pay for the drinks at a student hang-out, but launched into the question of international peace, the annual would have you believe.

Dr. Roosevelt Walker, the new bishop's brother, who is a member of the University of Georgia faculty now, made a short talk at the luncheon.

At the consecration exercises, the rite began with Hugh Hodgson playing the organ. From out on the street, the crowd inside heard the voices of the excellent choir singing. The voices grew louder and stronger, and the big doors were opened.

Down the middle aisle, spotted in the rays of gold and red and blue light from the high windows, came first the crucifer, a shining cross. Then the flag of the United States, gently waving in time to the rhythm of the march. The white-robed choir, 60 or more strong, came next—men and women singing "Jerusalem the Golden! With Milk and Honey Blest."

The voices filled the big church and above all could be heard the soprano of Minna Hecker, the church soloist.

Unsmiling and moving precisely, like clockwork, came then the officers of the diocese, Judge E. E. Pomeroy, the chancellor, the treasurer, the lay members of the standing committee; and then there was another crucifer.

Other Clergymen. The clergy of other dioceses and the clergy of the diocese of Atlanta came next. There was the Rev. George Purnell Gunn, the new rector of St. Luke's, and the masters of the ceremonies, the Rev. Theodore Virgil Morrison and the Rev. James Milton Richardson.

The bishops followed, their long red and black robes sweeping along the carpet as they marched two by two.

Bishop Walker, clad in white over his black robe, walked in and down the aisle, attended by the Rev. Theodore St. Clair Will, rector of All Saints, and the Rev. David Cady Wright Jr., rector of Emmanuel church in Athens. They were the presbyters.

The presenting bishops, the Right Rev. Edwin Anderson Penick, bishop of North Carolina, and the Right Rev. Middleton Stewart Barnwell, bishop of Georgia, came right behind them.

Consecrators. The Right Rev. Frank Alexander Juhan, bishop of Florida, and the Right Rev. Richard Bland Mitchell, bishop of Arkansas, trod the aisle.

Last was the Right Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, the bishop of Virginia and the presiding bishop. He was the consecrator, and Bishop Juhan and Bishop Mitchell were his co-consecrators.

It takes three bishops to consecrate another bishop in the Episcopal church, and yesterday's ceremonies did not find the United States Episcopalians in the same fix they once were in. In the early days of this country, this church found itself with only two bishops—not enough to consecrate.

The high clergy had to scout around and get another bishop consecrated in England so as to have enough United States bishops to carry on the work.

There was no lack of bishops yesterday. In addition to those named, present were the Right Rev. John Durham Wing, bishop of South Florida, who preached the consecration sermon; the Right Rev. Robert Emmet Gribben, bishop of western North Carolina; the Right Rev. Charles Colcock Jones Carpenter, bishop of Alabama; the Rev. John Long Jackson, bishop of Louisiana, and the bishop of Kentucky, the Right Rev. Charles Clingman.

The bishop of Tennessee, the Right Rev. James Maxon, of Memphis, also was there. He had no special part on the program but came just to see Bishop Walker consecrated.

The new bishop was further honored yesterday in the music for the affair. Hodgson, the south's most famous organist, composed "Communion Service in D" and dedicated it to the clergyman.

Communion Ritual. Communion was a part of the ritual at the consecration. Bishop Tucker began it, and passed the gleaming silver cup of wine to the kneeling bishops gathered around him at the holy table. He gave it to Bishop Walker to drink, and then Bishop Walker passed it to his fellow bishops.

Bishop Tucker drained the last drop at the end, and cleansed it with a silver plate, from which he had passed bread, thoroughly with a linen cloth before replacing them on the table beneath the altar.

Bishop Walker will immediately assume his duties as ranking churchman in the Episcopal faith in this area. He will have charge of church affairs in Atlanta, Rome, Macon, Columbus and other cities where Episcopal churches and missions are located in northern Georgia.

He urged the spread of mission work in the state when he spoke briefly at the luncheon, and he stressed the necessity for each person to assume responsibilities, not evade them.

Bishop Tucker preached at St. Luke's last night, and today will preside at a conference of the clergy and laity at St. Philip's Cathedral, beginning at 9 o'clock this morning.

Measure Heat Space by Ruler For Oil Ration

Harry Sommers Gives Preparatory Instructions to Public.

If you heat with fuel oil, you are advised to get out your yardstick and measure the space to be heated in preparation for the forthcoming rationing of oil.

This instruction was made public yesterday by Harry Sommers, southern regional OPA rationing executive. Householders were urged by Sommers to fill their tanks up to 275 gallons before Thursday when the rationing program goes into effect. Oil up to that amount may be purchased now without pledging coupons soon to be issued.

Other steps to take in getting ready for oil ration applications are as follows:

1. Make a note of the amount of fuel oil on hand October 1. This information must be included in the affidavit made to the ration board at the time the ration is applied for.

2. Obtain from your dealer the amount of fuel oil purchased from him last winter.

Although an inventory of the amount of oil on hand October 1 must be reported to the local rationing board, Sommers pointed out that those unable to fill up to 275 gallons will not be penalized.

"Any fuel oil on hand October 1, or purchased after that date will be part of the household's ration, regardless of the date on which coupons are actually available for transfer," Sommers said.

October 15 has been set tentatively as the date for boards to start processing user applications.

Impersonation Charges Dismissed

Charges against Clarence Smith, of Rutledge county, for alleged impersonation of an internal revenue agent were dismissed yesterday by United States Commissioner David J. Meyerhardt when the government's principal witness refused to identify Smith as one of a group who are said to have posed as federal officers seeking an illicit still and arrested the witness.

Named along with Smith in the complaint were Clyde Duke, W. Allen Duke, Howard Duke, all brothers, and William Skinner. All waived preliminary hearing and are held for the October term of the federal grand jury. Clyde Duke is under $5,000 bond and the other three are under bonds of $2,500 each.

Smith was under temporary bond of $1,500.

Rationing Ordered For Rubber Boots And Work Shoes

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The Office of Price Administration today ordered the rationing of rubber boots and rubber work shoes effective October 5.

Effective at midnight tonight all such stocks on the shelves were ordered frozen until the rationing begins. Then the goods will be sold on certificate only to men working on jobs essential to the war or to public health and safety. Applications for certificates may be obtained from local rationing boards.

Women's and children's rubber boots and ordinary rubbers, arctic, and gaiters are not affected by the freeze on the rationing orders. Reclaimed rubber is mostly used for them.

This first government move into the field of clothing rationing affects six types of men's rubber boots and rubber work shoes because they require a high content of crude rubber and because of a mounting demand among industrial and agricultural workers. The almost immediate freezing order was designed to halt, before it began, any buyers' run on the stocks. The order was made public not many hours before most stores normally close for the day. These types were covered by the order:

Hip-height rubber boots, including all of hip, body and thigh heights; over the knee rubber boots, including "storm king" height; all heavy short rubber boots; all light weight short rubber boots; rubber pacs and booties 10 inches or more in height; and rubber pacs, booties and work shoes less than 10 inches in height.

Look For Economy in Home Financing!

In wartime, it's sound business sense to check your mortgage arrangements . . . to see if it is possible for you to effect economies in the cost of financing your home. The past few years have brought vast improvements and greater flexibility in home-financing plans through your Savings and Loan Association. Check these factors against your present mortgage program for greater economy.

1. How OLD is your present mortgage? . . . If it's more than five years old, chances are that it can be refinanced at substantial savings for you.
2. Is yours a MODERN type of mortgage? . . . The Monthly Payment loan, introduced by Savings Associations such as ours, is conceded to be the best kind of home-owning plan available today. If yours is not a Monthly Payment loan, let us show you its many advantages.
3. How many YEARS has your loan to run? . . . You may effect important economies by re-writing your loan for a shorter term of years. This is one sure way to REDUCE total costs for interest.
4. How much of your mortgage has been PAID OFF? . . . If you have paid off a substantial portion of your original mortgage amount, you may be entitled to a lower rate of interest than you now pay. Or you may wish to re-write your mortgage for a longer period of years, thus reducing the amount of your monthly payment.
5. A CASH PAYMENT can reduce your costs. . . . You may be in a position to make a substantial cash payment, reducing the amount of your present loan. You can save money by reducing your mortgage debt.

Spence Grayson Withdraws in Race For Speaker of House

Spence M. Grayson, Chatham county representative in the Georgia general assembly, announced yesterday his withdrawal as a candidate for speaker of the house at the legislative session which convenes in January.

Constitution Staff Photo—Bill Wilson.
WITHDRAWS.—Spence M. Grayson, Chatham county representative, who announced yesterday he will not be a candidate for speaker of the house at the next legislative session.

Grayson issued the following statement:

"Since early summer, I have seriously considered making the race for speaker of the house of representatives. It has been a real privilege for me to have had the pleasure of making many friendships in the house of representatives during the past 16 years, and, for the past several months, I have received a great deal of encouragement from many of my old friends with whom I have previously served in the house of representatives, offering me their support should I make the race.

Careful Consideration.

"After carefully considering my possible candidacy from every angle, I have come to the studied conclusion that, with the incoming administration and under present national and state conditions, that the requisite most desired in the operation of our state government is close harmony and co-operation. The people of Georgia are entitled to this co-ordination in the operation of their government and the incoming Governor is certainly entitled to a house of representatives from which there is entirely removed all feeling of strife, personalities and discord.

"It is my opinion that were I to make the race for speaker, that the result would be, whether I won or lost, that the feeling engendered into the house by such a race would not be helpful to the incoming Governor or conducive to the smooth functioning of that branch of the legislature to which I think the people of Georgia are entitled.

Acts on Own Initiative.
"I would be untruthful if I did not state that I would deeply appreciate occupying the position of speaker, but, without regard to personal ambition and looking only toward the improved administration of the functions of state government and hoping that my elimination as a candidate will be an aid to the house of representatives, to the incoming Governor-elect and to the people of the state as a whole, I have definitely determined that I will not be a candidate for the speakership.

"I wish all of my friends, who have offered me encouragement, to know that I have not entered into any trade, compromise or agreement in deciding not to run. My action is taken solely on my own initiative in the hope that it will be a contribution which will react beneficially to my state."

Campaign Cost For Talmadge Was $66,466

Expenses $20,000 Less Than That Spent by Arnall.

Governor Talmadge said yesterday he had spent more this year than in any of his three previous campaigns for Governor, but the total of $66,466.83 was nearly $20,000 less than the expenditures reported by his opponent, Attorney General Ellis Arnall.

In his report to the comptroller general, the Governor listed the expenses of his unsuccessful campaign for a fourth term as $32,865.20 for advertising, $11,106.66 for radio time, $7,534.94 for clerical help, $4,544.23 for postage and express, $3,825.60 for stationery and office supplies, $3,574.36 for travel, $1,716.40 for telephone and telegraph, and $1,299.44 for rental and expenses of campaign headquarters.

Of the total, he said, he and members of his family gave $16,000, while the rest was received from hundreds of individuals who were listed in his report. Individual gifts ranged from 25 cents to $1,000.

Arnall Figures.
Arnall, the victor in the September 9 primary, reported campaign expenditures of $85,038.22, a record high, yesterday. He said that he spent $16,123.22 of his personal funds and that the balance was contributed by friends and relatives. He did not identify individual givers.

In his 1940 campaign for the $7,500-a-year job as Governor, Talmadge listed expenditures of $40,263. In that race he defeated former Commissioner of Agriculture Columbus Roberts, who reported he spent $69,255—the largest amount on record until Arnall filed his report.

Expenses listed by Talmadge in his two previous campaigns for Governor were $12,538 in 1932 and $26,602 in 1934.

Today was the deadline for filing reports on campaign expenditures and contributions. Comptroller General Homer C. Parker said the only two candidates unreported were E. B. Dykes, of Vienna, who ran against him, and Mary D. Goudelock, who opposed Vivian L. Stanley, of the Prison and Parole Commission.

Report Deadline.
The law specifies that the reports shall be submitted within 20 days of the primary. Parker said he believed it would be all right if they were mailed by midnight tonight.

House Speaker Randall Evans Jr., of Thomson, defeated for attorney general in a race with T. Grady Head, of Ringgold, said his campaign expenses were $6,162. Of this, he added, $2,215 was contributed by friends, $500 was his own money and the rest was borrowed. His largest expense item was $1,750 for advertising.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS

Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste

If you have an excess of acids in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatism, leg pain, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Kidneys may need help the same as bowels, so ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Jeffers Appoints Deputy Director

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP) Rubber Director Jeffers today announced the appointment of Colonel Bradley Dewey, of Cambridge, Mass., as deputy director.

Dewey, a consultant on rubber to the Army Quartermaster Corps, and holder of the Distinguished Service Medal for his work as chief of the gas defense division of the Chemical Warfare Service in the last war, is associated with the Dewey & Alamy Chemical Company.

The Dewey & Alamy firm has engaged in synthetic rubber research and has a synthetic plant in operation. Materials for the plant were granted in December, and the factory, built with the firm's own funds, went into operation last month. Colonel Dewey has conducted intensive research in Buna S all-purpose synthetic rubber.

DeKalb To Stage Waterworks Fete

Inauguration of DeKalb county's waterworks system, a county-owned and sponsored project, will be observed Saturday afternoon, Sheriff Jake Hall, chairman of the committee in charge, announced yesterday. The DeKalb County Chamber of Agriculture and Commerce is sponsoring the event.

A motorcade will leave the DeKalb county courthouse at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, proceeding to the pumping station and the filtration plant, where short exercises will be held. A fish fry will feature the event. Tickets are on sale at 50 cents each. Reservations can be made by calling CR. 1461.

W. H. Weaver, superintendent of the waterworks system, said last night the new plant will purify and pump about 8,000,000 gallons of water a day, and, jointly with the Decatur and Avondale systems, will serve the western half of the county.

Defense of Little Civilians Gets the Green Lights

Davison's Safety Crusade

Those hurrying little feet you hear each morning are taking young America back on the job—not to learn to fight, not to learn how to carry a gun, but just to learn the simple A B C's. And we like to think that for the past six years we had a part in teaching your children the A B C's of Safety. For year after year, school after school has signed Davison's Safety Pledge 100%, and this year already many youngsters are well on their way to winning a War Bond in our sixth annual Safety Crusade. But this year, the responsibility is yours, too! With fewer cars on the streets, it is easy for little children engrossed in the latest antics of Mickey Mouse and Superman to grow careless, to forget to watch the lights. So please drive slowly, please drive carefully, there is no priority on accidents. Help our children keep Davison's Safety Pledge—by observing the rules yourself.

LOOK AT THE EXCITING PRIZES:

The first ten classes to go 100% will receive Davison's shiny, red Safety Buttons

1st Prize for Boys—$25 War Bond
1st Prize for Girls—$25 War Bond
2nd Prize Boys—$10 in Merchandise
2nd Prize Girls—$10 in Merchandise

Ten prizes of $1 Gift Certificate for boys and ten $1 Gift Certificates for girls.

SPECIAL CLASS AWARD—To all grades who sign Davison's Safety Pledge 100%.

DAVISON'S SAFETY RULES:

1. All children in the Atlanta City and Country Schools from the 1st through 6th grades are eligible except children of employees of Davison's.
2. Papers must be written legibly and must not exceed 50 words.
3. Entrance blanks may be secured and must be turned in at one of the following places: Iris Lee Department, Street Floor; Boys' Department, Second Floor; Youth Centre, Second Floor; Children's Shoe Department, Third Floor; and Children's Department, Basement.
4. All papers must be in by 6:00 P. M., November 3!
5. Entries will be judged on originality, neatness and convincingness.
6. All entries become the property of Davison's. None will be returned to the contestant. The decisions of the judges will be final.

Haugland's Diary Reveals Torture of 43 Days in Jungle

MELBOURNE, Australia, Sept. 29.—Vern Haugland's battle for survival in the jungle—the story of an Associated Press war correspondent who wandered for 43 days in the mountainous wilderness of New Guinea, into which he parachuted from a storm-wrecked Army plane and came out delirious, exhausted and sick, but alive—was told today in the entries of his diary.

Haugland had never seen a jungle before. He had had no experience with the tropics.

With no food but berries—"delicious berries"—and the juice of grass and weeds, Haugland at times felt his plight was hopeless.

"If I don't die tonight I may push on along shore a way tomorrow," he wrote after he had been lost in the jungle at least 23 days.

The terrain seemed impassable. "The most vivid, terrible scene I ever witnessed. Such peaks!" he wrote after he had climbed to one mountain top only to see serried ranges across his path.

Too Weak to Swim.
Seemingly too weak either to swim the river he was following or to scale the sheer mountains through which it raced, he nonetheless decided to try.

"Pray to God for safety," he wrote. But he couldn't make it and had to turn back.

Haugland, 34, tall and wiry, and used to outdoor life, is a native of Minnesota. He volunteered for a war front assignment soon after December 7 when he was working in the Los Angeles Associated Press bureau. He was the first of the present Associated Press staff in Australia to arrive in a convoy. Haugland began his newspaper career in Montana and joined the Associated Press in Salt Lake City.

By the flip of a coin with another newspaperman, he won a seat on an Army bomber that was going to the New Guinea front. Haugland's plane got lost in a storm and ran out of gas.

The co-pilot, Lieutenant James A. Michael, of Temple, Okla., showed Haugland how to bail out and he made his first parachute jump at 13,000 feet.

Michael still is missing, after becoming separated from Haugland. The other members of the crew, including Sergeant George T. Richman, of Hopewell, Va., Sergeant Paul Ramsey, of Vincennes, Ind., and Lieutenant Duncan Seffern, of Manawa, Wis., reached Port Moresby in from 8 to 20 days.

Landed Uninjured.
Haugland landed uninjured in the jungle on the evening of August 7. The first entry in the small, paper-bound diary was made that day. Then for at least 32 days of his wanderings—he may have telescoped several days into one or two entries when he became delirious—he made regular notes.

The diary ends abruptly on September 9, but not until he had found a path and twig shelters, the first signs of human habitation.

Missionaries found him in a native village on September 19 and brought him to a coastal point by a five-day trek through the jungle.

An Australian plane took him to Port Moresby hospital where he dreamed, in his delirium, that he was still falling in his parachute. But he emerged from his long delirium last night and is recovering.

This is his diary, just as it was written, except for a few passages which could not be deciphered or which were of a purely personal nature:

August 7—Bailed out about 6:30 at about 13,000 (feet). Nite in chute in rain. Uninjured.

August 8—Heard plane at seven. (Two words illegible). Eight forty after filling preserver with water.

August 9—Hiking.

August 10—Mike and I hiked all day.

August 11—Co-Pilot Michael and I may get separated. I have a life preserver; he hasn't. If you find me and not him, send help quickly as he is starving. With food he can make it.

August 12—Through God's grace Mike and I are still together. Forded river near fork. Spent last night in chute. Mike caught up. . . . Spent nite on hillside, rain starting at four, under small rock. Third nite under brush shelter. Fourth day little progress until took to river. Fifth day at fork forded another river, waded down another. Spent nite on board clay shelf over river. Rained early. Saw wallaby.

Aug. 13—Still no food, no sign of people. Over Mt. down river. At 3 p. m. drenched by heavy rain, spent nite in small cave with rocks falling.

Aug. 14—Not much progress. Most horrible rainy nite yet. We got pile of wet reeds—slept under them in soaking clothes.

Aug. 15—Over more Mts. Heard plane but too much cloud. Slept under big log—kept pretty dry.

Aug. 16—Both very weak—feet bad.

Later—Aug. 16—Must take to river. We may get separated or drowned but pray to God for safety.

(Entry in different hand-writing, presumably Michael's: "In case we are separated I'll be up the river in bad need of food. Please rush to rescue. Lt. James A. Michael.")

Decide to Separate.
Later Aug. 16—Mike went up over the hill. I started down the river, saw I couldn't make it and came back to dry my clothes. Will try and follow him tomorrow. Made bed between rock and log. Hope no rain. Maybe Mike can go faster alone. I hope so. He's a wonderful boy and deserves to live.

Aug. 17—Fairly good nite. Can see now must take to river. Dear God, help me make it. Plane came over early, but too far away—didn't see me. Very weak.

Evening—Got into river—saw couldn't make it. Awful climb up Mt. There I saw it straight down. Absolutely no hope.

Climbing further—terrible Mts. ahead. River also impassable—winds endlessly. View on top convinced me only miracle of God can help now. All I can do is lie and wait, wish for a miracle or death. Made it back to camp—about ready to go to sleep.

Aug. 18—Hope Co-Pilot James Aubrey Michael, of Temple, Okla., who caught up with me 8-8, is OK. He should be six or eight miles ahead of me down river by now. Amazing thing is how clear-headed we have remained.

Aug. 19—Second day lying on rocks, chewing grass and reeds, praying a great deal. Getting so weak. Hardly any hope now. Lost life preserver. Watched vainly all day for a plane. Only hope is a plane dropping food or ground aid arriving—both extremely unlikely. Looks like I shall die here soon.

Aug. 20—Worst rainy nite since Mike and I spent two terrible ones. I was just lying in the mud, soaked and stinking, all night. Somehow stronger today. Foot healing, too. It could get real food think could hike around Mt. Seems too bad to die when may be could struggle to a village. If only the Mts. didn't stretch on, sharper and sharper. If only knew shortest way to go to sea.

Aug. 21—Last nite rainiest of BAYONET PRACTICE—Lieutenant Bill Howland (left), of Tallapoosa, Ga., watches Corporal Carl Bigham, of Trenton, Mich., at bayonet practice as part of the assault course American paratroopers undergo in their training at British encampments.

all. Raining today, too. Life vest washed away.

Aug. 22—Worst rainy nite yet—didn't think I could stand that torture. Rain today—dread tonight.

Aug. 23—Surprisingly didn't rain. Moon came out. . . . about flooded out of bed by rise. Spent rest of nite under tree. Hate leave river but think I'll bandage feet and go around Mt. Ate lots more reeds.

Aug. 24—Had warm, dry nite. Two and one-half weeks with nothing to eat—my body looks terrible. If someone comes today I can still live—but I need food. Head clear. . . . position good otherwise.

Aug. 25—Worst nite of all. Heavy rain. River came up, flooded me out of one bed, then another. Had to climb into rocks and sit shivering there. Yet somehow today, the almost sleepless, I have more strength to walk around on than for several days. All search for me, if any, must have been given up, so my plight is about hopeless.

Aug. 26—Rained early last night, drenching me. Found dirty hole for head under rotten log—rest exposed. Awful nite. . . . Awoke a bit delirious for first time. Looks equally bad tonight—I'm still wet from last nite.

Near the End.
Aug. 27—Got wettest yet. Wet all day today. Very weak—looks near the end. Clothes won't dry out.

Aug. 28—This may be wrong date. Either last nite was very long and full of bad dreams or I have been semi-delirious. . . . two or three days. . . . Only one nite, though, because it must have been fairly dry and my clothes are only damp. If can summon strength, may hike thru woods in hope of finding a shelter hut. Also berries or food. Found some delicious berries on shore.

Aug. 29—Got back to big log Mike and I slept under August 15. Kept me quite dry in spite of heavy rain.

Later—Climbed all day—nearly on top and looks impossible get clear over. Exhausted.

Evening, August 29—On top, amazingly, awe-inspiring view, but raining so will try for better look in a. m. Drenched and cold—may not survive. If I do, I feel my chance of getting out alive is better since I'll get an idea of the layout. Can see the river for miles. Despite cold, feel better tonight—more confident. Whatever happens, God has been good to me.

Aug. 30—Got dry during nite so fairly comfortable despite lack of cover. Now at mt. top. Most vivid, terrible scene I ever witnessed. Such peaks! Only thing to do—keep away from river and keep . . . out to east or south much as possible. In every other direction . . . stretch farther away. . . .

Back to River.
Thirst sent me back to river but I got way down stream. Dug through worst jungle yet, then down deep little stream, and just arrived all done in—my feet very bad too. If I don't die tonight I may push on along shore a way tomorrow—I don't know why. There is no chance for me now, in this . . . jungle—I know that.

Aug. 31—Last night wettest of all. Very cold under only slight cover of palm. Dry.

Sept. 1—Surprisingly didn't rain. Moon came out. . . . about flooded out of bed by rise. Spent rest of nite under tree. Hate leave river but think I'll bandage feet and go around Mt. Ate lots more reeds.

Sept. 2—Crossed another creek last night, found good palm cover from heavy rain. Now climbing mountain. Saw another emu. Two or three wallabies yesterday.

Mid P. M.—Reached top, for first time see great valley—far away—and not impossible to reach. Dear God, help me keep my strength—this may be into settled area. Reached bottom before rain started.

Sept. 2—Under log awhile, then under palm. Wettest yet. Almost longest hike yesterday and today. Another emu, three wallabies, two others. Now going down into valley—hope opens through.

River makes incredible cut further over, but may avoid it.

Washes Bandages.
Sept. 3— . . . Reached river bottom below extreme peaks, bathed, washed out bandages, dried feet. One toe very badly swollen. Example of how Lord shepherd me—led me to rock crevice right by river where avoided heavy storm, then brought out sun, made good bed but lost in dark, sat. . . . rain. Steady hike up creek today. Late start.

Sept. 4—After tough day, worst wettest, coldest night. Hand so numb can't write. Terrible struggle through jungle today.

Sundown—climbed, most wonderful views yet. Sharp air battle. (No elaboration of this statement.)

Sept. 5—No rain, best nite. On hill in tall grass. Tough up and down day, but turning most time S and W (presumably south and west) after all these days mostly of . . . and W, even E. Heavy rain but stayed dry in hollow tree first time in New Guinea. Heard plane.

Sept. 6—Reached river's end valley. . . . Now surrounded by rivers which can't ford. Guess have to go back. . . . one on right. Only chance now native come, I guess. Almost nothing edible several days—very weak.

Later—answer to prayers—dozens and dozens of bramble berries. Sleep under great log—perfectly dry—good sleep. Mosquitos not bad.

Dines on Berries.
Sept. 7—Berry breakfast—forded creek—berries galore. . . . mosquitos unbearable. Little native twig shelter. Unable ford another river, slept most day long and spent most day eating and reading. Slept under twig shelter (native). This island no mosquitos, few flies. Big relief. Was nice day, beautiful nite. Gorgeous sunset.

Sept. 8—Rained lightly during nite. Today tried ford river, but couldn't. Upstream it (word undecipherable). Many good berries still. Three ft. away. Crossed big river on log jam, got almost across another on log meaning five foot jump, waded instead. Crossed an-

my mother I've been real sick, but I'm all right."

Rescue Described.

Lehrbas told for the first time how Haugland had been rescued after wandering for weeks in the trackless jungles of New Guinea.

Passing through a village in the interior of New Guinea, two Australian missionaries found the fever-stricken, exhausted reporter being cared for by natives. The missionaries gave first aid and tried to feed Haugland.

Realizing that he needed skilled medical attention, they engaged native bearers and accompanied them as they carried the helpless reporter on a five-day trek through the jungles to a coastal point.

Haugland was in grave condition when he reached a port where an Australian Army unit was stationed. The Australians did everything possible for him within the limits imposed by their out-post equipment.

Fortunately for Haugland, MacArthur's chief of engineers, Brigadier General Hugh J. Casey, was visiting the isolated post. Seeing little hope of saving Haugland unless he could be hospitalized immediately, Casey sent urgent messages which brought a small Australian plane to the post.

Rescue Plane.

Casey not only obtained the rescue plane, but took time off from a vital job to help look after Haugland.

In an effort to soothe the correspondent, who alternately muttered incomprehensibly and burst out in song, Casey sang with him.

"I don't know what I sang," Casey said, "but it seemed to help."

Casey said that Haugland talked about God and his mother. These moments were interspersed with periods of incoherent rambling in which he apparently thought himself still in the falling parachute.

He repeated over and over "down, down, deeper, deeper" and repeatedly called out: "Phi Delt, Phi Delt, Vee for victory."

(Haugland is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity.)

The correspondent left the isolated New Guinea outpost strapped in the open cockpit of a small plane which flew him to Port Moresby, where he was placed in an American advance base hospital.

Vichy Forms Councils

To Rule Possessions

VICHY, Unoccupied France, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The French government today established a system of Vichy-appointed "local councils" to rule France's Western Hemisphere possessions, replacing the elective general councils which were dissolved in October, 1940.

Affected will be Martinique, Guadelupe, and French Guiana, as well as Reunion Island in the Indian ocean.

The local councils will discuss and act on only "questions listed on the agenda drawn up by the chairman and approved by the governor," the government order stated. It said that they "may not express wishes of political character."

The secretary of state will name the members of the councils.

In the wilds of New Guinea, increased her hopes that her husband also would be found alive.

Lieutenant James A. Michael, of Temple, Okla., was co-pilot of the bomber from which Haugland parachuted when it ran out of fuel during a severe storm August 7. Haugland and Michael met on the second day of their wanderings but became separated August 16.

Mrs. Michael, who was married to the flyer last December, is here visiting Mrs. Robert F. Miller, wife of another bomber pilot who was rescued from Kelly field with Lieutenant Michael.

"I have just read in detail the text of the diary kept by Mr. Haugland during his 32 days in the jungle," Mrs. Michael said. "I am sure my husband will be found alive."

Two Laurens County Cows Sell for $500

Purebred Guernseys Rate
High at Sale Held in Florida.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
DUBLIN, Ga., Sept. 29.—Two purebred Guernsey cows bred in Laurens county by Parker Guernsey farm sold for $500 at the Florida Guernsey Cattle Club sale held at Largo, Fla., last week.

One of the cows, in her first lactation period, sold for $300 and the other, a bred heifer, sold for $200. The sale was a consignment sale, with 28 animals entered by breeders from North and South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

County Agent Harry A. Edge attended the sale and said that he was delighted to find Laurens county-bred cattle compared favorably with that of leading breeders in the southeast. There is a strong demand for good milk cows and this demand will likely continue, which means that Laurens county farmers will do well to breed their milk cows to purebred bulls, Mr. Edge said.

Horrie Dornay, assistant herdsman of the Parker Guernsey farm, also attended the sale. D. L. Parker, owner, was unable to attend due to recent illness.

Advertising Expense Still Deductible From Income Tax

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue, said in a formal statement today that advertising expenditures of businesses would continue to be deductible from income tax returns as long as they are "ordinary and necessary and bear a reasonable relation to the business activities in which the enterprise is engaged."

Civil Service Will Aid U.S. Tax Program

New Examinations for Bookkeeping Machine Operators Announced

Uncle Sam is already getting set to count more and more of those tax dollars next year.

The United States Civil Service Commission, yesterday announced new examinations for senior bookkeeping machine operators and operators of type-writer style bookkeeping machines to serve with the Treasury Department because of a "stepped-up tax program."

Senior operators will be paid $1,600 a year, the announcement said. Positions are open in Washington and elsewhere.

To speed up recruiting for ship inspectors, the commission said that men with four to six years of electrical, mechanical or ship-building experience may qualify for jobs with the Navy Department at salaries of from $2,500 to $2,600 a year.

Resident courses in transportation from traffic schools now may be substituted for part of the three-year experience requirement in qualifying for freight and passenger rate clerks, the commission reported. Pay ranges from $2,300 to $2,600 annually.

Applications should be filed not later than October 12 in Washington for positions as press assistants in the government printing office. Press assistants get 8 cents an hour and applicants with only one year of experience may qualify.

There is no maximum age limit on any of these positions, the commission said. Full information may be obtained at the board of U. S. civil service examiners at any first or second class post office.

6 Women Tested As Film Operators

Fifteen candidates for licenses to operate motion picture machines in Atlanta were examined yesterday by the newly created examiners board in the city council chamber. Six of the 15 were women, seeking to qualify as operators.

Paul B. Hulfish, chairman of the board, said the written tests will be followed by a practical examination as to the operation of machines, and those who pass the tests probably will be awarded their licenses late Friday. Many operators have been called into service either through enlistment or the draft, and women are now seeking to invade this field, formerly regarded as exclusively masculine in Atlanta.

CIVIC CLUB ROSTER. The 1942-43 East Lake Civic Club roster was released yesterday with a record membership list of 850 names. The club meets the first Friday in each month at the East Lake school auditorium.

The statement was issued, Helvering said, in response to numerous inquiries arising from Secretary Morgenthau's notice to congress May 28 that the bureau was examining corporation returns with a view to disallowing excessive deductions of various kinds, including advertising.

The statement follows: "To be deductible, advertising expenditures must be ordinary and necessary and bear a reasonable relation to the business activities in which the enterprise is engaged. The bureau recognizes that advertising is a necessary and legitimate business expense so long as it is not carried to an unreasonable extent or does not become an attempt to avoid proper tax payments."

"The bureau realizes that it may be necessary for taxpayers now engaged in war production to maintain, through advertising, their trade names and the knowledge of the quality of their products and good will built up over past years, so that when they return to peacetime production their names and the quality of their products will be known to the public."

"In determining whether such expenditures are allowable cognizance will be taken of (1) the size of the business, (2) the amount of prior advertising budgets, (3) the public patronage reasonably to be expected in the future, (4) the increased cost of the elements entering into the total of advertising expenditures, (5) the introduction of new products and added lines and (6) buying habits necessitated by war restrictions, by priorities and by the unavailability of many of the raw materials formerly fabricated into the advertised products."

"Reasonable expenses incurred by companies in advertising and advertising technique to speed the war effort among their own employees and to cut down accidents and unnecessary absences and inefficiency, will be allowed as deductions. Also reasonable expenditures for advertisements including the promotion of government objectives in wartime, such as conservation, saving of materials, and the sale of war bonds, which are signed by the advertiser, will be deductible provided they are reasonable and are not made in an attempt to avoid proper taxation."

"No Definite Rule." "It is the statutory responsibility of the bureau to determine and collect federal taxes, among which are the income and excess profits taxes, and to prevent abuses and attempts to avoid the high tax rates to which business will be subject under the proposed tax bill now before congress."

"No definite rule for determining what is reasonable in the case of expenditures for advertising can be laid in advance so as to fit all situations and all classes of taxpayers. In determining whether the amounts are reasonable it is necessary to take into consideration all the facts and circumstances in each particular case."

"The bureau will consider applications for individual rulings. It is, however, busy with an unusual volume of work and it is believed that if taxpayers will keep in mind the foregoing general rule, individual rulings will not be necessary except under most unusual circumstances."

RED INFANTRY MOVES UP—Russian foot soldiers advance to new positions on the Stalingrad front under cover of a smoke screen. Last night the Russians were attempting a flanking movement in an effort to relieve German pressure on the besieged city.

Reds Hurl Back Nazis in Two Vital Sectors

In one sector, but said that counterblows had restored their original positions. In another area on the same front, the Russians said they destroyed 11 Nazi tanks and killed 350 Germans in repulsing several enemy attacks.

Black Sea Coast. Southeast of Novorossisk, near the Black sea coast, the Russians reported that Red marines had routed the 12th Rumanian mountain infantry division, killing 300 Axis troops. Field dispatches said a total of 7,000 Axis troops had been killed in five days in the Novorossisk sector.

In the Leningrad defense area far to the north, the communists said several Red army detachments of snipers and scouts had killed 200 Germans and destroyed four Nazi tanks in a two-day fight. Moreover, the central front armies northwest of Rzhew, in what is more properly described as the Kalinin sector, drove through some of the heaviest German fortifications in Russia and dealt out a heavy defeat to the 87th Infantry division of the German General Schudness.

German Claims. (German military quarters, following reported Nazi penetration of a northern section of Stalingrad, broadcast that "the last phase in the struggle for the buildings has begun." Vichy broadcasts said Field Marshal Siegmund List had replaced Field Marshal Fedor von Bock in command of German forces in the south of Russia, including Stalingrad, and that Colonel General Hermann von Hoth was the new second in command. (London believed List, an enthusiastic exponent of lightning war, would attack Stalingrad savagely and without any regard for loss. British sources also said Field Marshal George von Kuechler now was in command of the German forces at Leningrad, succeeding Field Marshal Ritter von Leeb.)

The whole area from the river Don to Stalingrad and the Volga again was ablaze, said battle dispatches. More German troops and machines were pouring in, adding to the prevalent superiority in numbers. With two German divisions newly wedged into a workers' settlement on the northwest outskirts, fighting raged fiercely inside the city.

Typical was a battle for an area 30 meters wide by 250 meters long. Disregarding the proximity of the own troops, the Luftwaffe rained splinter bombs on the battle space. Then a wedge of German Tommy-gunners crawled up the street and the Russians did not detect them until they had attacked.

There were only a few defenders; the Germans were many. But Soviet reinforcements began to arrive after the Russians had fallen back about 30 meters, and the situation was saved. The new Russian forces attacked. One street changed hands four times, but finally the Russians held it.

During the fighting two units of Russian guards were fighting shoulder to shoulder in craters, between masses of heaped asphalt and in the shelter of broken telephone poles.

Northwest of Stalingrad, the midday communiqué told how one Russian unit advanced somewhat after wiping out more than a company of Germans, while another Red Army force in a night attack captured several hills within the enemy defenses, annihilating two companies of enemy infantry.

For three months there has been no rain on the broad steppe northwest of Stalingrad. A pall of thick dust and cannon smoke dimmed the sun and turned day into night. "The steppe is covered with dead, bristling grass," said one account of this battle area. "In places it is black. Where tanks and guns are of no avail, the Germans start prairie fires by dropping glass containers with incendiary fluid from airplanes. The steppe starts to burn. Gray lizards slither away from the flames. But the men stay. They dig ditches and extinguish the fire by throwing earth on it. . . . The earth is bone dry. But the infantry has to dig trenches and staunchly withstands the enemy's tank attacks."

On the Kalinin front, northwest of Moscow, one stretch of upper Volga bank was reported cleared completely of Germans, and the Russians were doing their utmost to follow up the early gains of an offensive which began last Saturday.

The assault was so sudden that the German covering forces fled and by night of the first day the Russians reached the northern bank of a waterway.

Pravda, the Communist newspaper, said the German 87th division suffered worst, losing 2,000 men. The regimental banner of the German 185th was captured.

German defenses in this area, built up for 11 months, included antitank ditches and large minefields.

At the southern end of the front, in the deep Caucasus region of Moxdok, the Germans employed large columns of tanks to capture a small settlement. Red Star, the Army organ, reported, however, that the Russians have been greatly strengthened in this Terek valley sector, and were coping with attacks by 50 to 200 tanks. In 10 days, one Soviet unit was reported to have destroyed 76 tanks, frequently using ambush tactics.

The new German tank columns were arriving constantly in the Caucasus from the deep rear, and it was probable that the Nazis were moving the machines on the captured sections of the Rostov-to-Baku railway.

Grant Park Civic Group Again Re-elects Hopkins

A. C. Hopkins has been re-elected president of the Grant Park Civic Association for the fourth consecutive year, it was announced last night. The association was organized in 1939. Other officers elected include J. A. Harper, first vice president; R. C. Ailor, second vice president; Mrs. J. Y. Wilson, secretary, and Mrs. J. C. DeLoach, treasurer.

Seven Georgia Cities To Get Spanish Like Big Airports

Senator Russell States CAA Has Approved Many State Projects.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP) Senator Russell announced today the Civil Aeronautics Authority airports approval board had given final approval for these airport projects in Georgia, and estimated costs where available:

St. Mary's, $1,000,000, four runways, 200 by 5,000 feet; Dublin, $800,000, three runways, 100 by 5,000 feet; Tifton, $400,000; Cordele, $400,000; Vidalia-Lyons, amount indeterminate; Sylvania, amount indeterminate; LaGrange, amount indeterminate.

The CAA said costs and other details were not available in cases where contracts were being negotiated.

Contractor Head Elected Lord Mayor of London

LONDON, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Sir Samuel George Joseph was elected today to the ancient office of Lord Mayor of London, a position more of honor and tradition than of administrative responsibility now.

The new mayor, 54, is head of a firm of building contractors.

Wallace's Spanish Like Cugat English

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP)—No offense intended, but that gay caballero from Iowa, our own Vice President Henry Wallace, has more than a trace of el tall corno in his rendition of Spanish.

This is not to indicate that the vice president, Washington's leading linguist, is anything but on the beam in his speeches to our Latin-American good neighbors, it was explained hastily today by Margo, the Mexican singer, interviewed here. The vice president, she said, has "the corn-belt accent." He speaks Spanish like Xavier Cugat, Spanish orchestra leader, speaks English—charmingly."

Hancock Guard Unit Receives Fire-Arms

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. SPARTA, Ga., Sept. 29.—The Hancock State Guard unit has received a supply of single-barrel shotguns and shells to replace the Army rifles which were recalled a few weeks ago to be shipped to the fighting front. The shotguns are of various makes which were purchased by the government from hardware stores over the country.

Commander Marvin Pound has regular drill practice each week and many of the men are well trained in modern military tactics.

ATLANTA, GA., SEPTEMBER 30, 1942.

It Is "Essential Work"

The suggestion by Major General Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, that agricultural workers in some areas, or for some crops, be put in the class of essential war workers is sound. There can scarcely be any argument against the thesis that the production of food for the nation, for the armed services and for our allies is an essential occupation.

General Hershey proposes, in view of the growing farm labor shortage, that any physically-fit, draft-age men who have left the farm for higher paying jobs in the city, be immediately inducted into military service. On the argument that they have left an essential war occupation in leaving the farm, and therefore their exemption from military service has been voided.

Of course it would then be necessary to classify agricultural work, either by crops or areas, to determine which are actually essential and which are not. Then farm labor could be concentrated in the essential crop areas.

Whether or not this proposal can be accepted, it is an indication of a trend to correct thinking on the part of the authorities. For it has been an absurdity, in the past, to draft men from the farms, without regard to the importance of their work, and at the same time exempt from military service men working in industries which are only of indirect war importance.

There is no occupation more essential to the war effort, to the maintenance of national morale and to direct aid for our allies, than that of raising the desired quantities of foods on the farms of the nation. A policy which creates a situation where crops are in danger of rotting in the fields for lack of labor to harvest them, is shortsighted and could easily be fatal to the war effort.

There is nothing more essential to the wartime life of the nation than the production of food in abundance.

Reason for Censorship

It is oftentimes difficult for Americans, accustomed to unlimited freedom of press, of speech, to understand why certain facts must not be made public, must not be openly discussed, in time of war.

Byron Price, director of censorship for the United States, gave the best reason possible for wartime censorship. He gave it in one sentence, while speaking before the convention of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association, at Hot Springs, Ark.

The sole purpose of censorship, said Price, is to withhold information which "might make it easier for the enemy to kill Americans." In other words, to save American lives.

There is a tendency, sometimes, to resent lack of information on certain subjects. There are some who criticize Washington for not "taking the public more fully into official confidence." There are heard and read statements that "the American people can take it," meaning that there is not good reason for withholding bad news, for painting too optimistic a picture of the war situation.

Yet, when careful thought is given to the basis for such complaints, when all possibilities and inferences in the news withheld are taken into account, the fact remains there is only one basic reason for the exercise of censorship at all. That is, to prevent the enemy from finding it "easier to kill Americans."

The job of the censor is one of the most thankless of all wartime duties, yet it is one of the most essential. Americans must learn to accept restrictions on their tongues and on their press as part of the price which must be paid for victory—and for protection of the lives of our sons and brothers, husbands and sweethearts and friends, on all the battlefronts of the world-wide war.

Soldiers of Production

Seven of the Army-Navy "E" banners for excellence in war production were awarded Monday in Georgia. One went to the Scripto Manufacturing Company of Atlanta, and six to six Chattahoochee Valley textile plants, operated by the West Point Manufacturing Company.

Henceforth those plants will proudly fly the emblematic banners from their flagpoles and henceforth each worker there will be entitled to wear the "E" lapel pin.

It is but due and fitting that workers in war industries and the industries themselves be thus publicly honored for their contributions toward victory. This war will be won on the battlefields, but nevertheless it is most truly a war of production. The side which creates the best and most equipment for its fighting men will enable those fighting men to smash the enemy. That is the simple, overall strategy of the conflict.

Thus there are two lines of battle. There is the armed man who does the actual fighting, and there is the worker in the factory at home who makes for that fighting man the equipment without which he could not fight. Soldiers in arms, at the front; soldiers of production in reserve.

It is a high honor when these Georgia plants win the national recognition implied in the "E" award. It reflects many months of untiring, efficient and loyal labor for the nation.

Yet it can be regarded only as typical of the type of war effort that Georgians will put forth if only they are shown where and how they can join the conflict. Just let the authorities at Washington place war contracts or sub-contracts with Georgia firms, big or small, and it will not be long before the "E" banners are waving over scores, yes, hundreds, of Georgia industrial plants, operated by Georgians and manned by loyal Georgia men and women.

Victory Corps

High school students of Georgia will soon be receiving special training designed to prepare them for the roles they will, in a few short years, be called upon to play in a warring world.

A committee of prominent educators has been named by Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, to start organization of this particular branch of education. Soon a detailed program will be adopted and subjects will be offered the students intended to give them basic education for whatever type of war job, in or out of the armed services, they are best fitted for.

The movement is nationwide, headed by Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, and is known as the High School Victory Corps.

The war may be over by the time many of these young men and women are old enough and trained enough to play their parts. On the other hand, there is strong probability the fighting will not be done with for many years.

In any event, it is good for the boys and girls nearing maturity to learn those fundamentals which must be known if they are to become good material for the Army, the Navy, the Air Corps, the forces of production, the home workers in many of war's correlated activities. If the war is still raging it will reduce, by many months, their time of training. And if the war is over, the knowledge they gain will be invaluable in a world faced with the twin problems of preventing the outbreak of new wars and of making a better peace and a better world than ever known before.

Regardless of when the war ends we must, for generations, retain our national fighting strength; be ready, should necessity come, to fight and win without the long delay of preparation after the enemy has attacked.

That is the only way to maintain peace in a world where nations still exist which regard force as the door to national glory.

Georgia Editors Say:

CASUALTIES GREATER THAN MADE KNOWN TO PUBLIC.

(From The Covington News.)

We believe the administration is making a mistake in keeping the casualties in this war from the public. The reason given is that if casualties were published it would give aid and comfort to the enemy.

We believe this to be a mistaken idea. We think that if the public was informed of just how many of our boys were dying on the far-flung battlefronts of the world, that the aid and comfort given the enemy would be far offset by the moral effect upon the citizens of our country.

Too many people are taking this war with easy-going indifference. The truth of the casualties has not been brought home to them unless their families or friends have suffered. Even then these are thought to be isolated cases and the public slumbers on.

The statement made by Congressman Sidney Camp to the Democratic Executive meeting at Griffin that in this war there have been at this early date as many casualties as there were in the entire World War I, is a startling fact to most of us. We acknowledge we had not even considered this likely in our wildest stretch of imagination.

GOOD-WILL WILLKIE WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Whether or not it was a part of the original design, the present journey of Mr. Wendell L. Willkie to Allied world capitals is beginning to assume an important and significant purpose.

The former Republican presidential nominee is emerging as the outstanding American good-will ambassador of our times.

It is doubtful that Mr. Willkie visualized for himself any such role when he set out on his journey a short while ago. More than likely he was prompted to make the trip as much out of curiosity as anything else, plus a natural desire to make himself useful in any way possible to the Allied war cause. Mr. Roosevelt, in giving him credentials which clothed his mission with a semi-official status, may or may not have foreseen the results of the Willkie visit.

What Mr. Willkie has accomplished so far seems to lie outside of the field of things that could have been preconceived. In the various conferences he has held with governmental leaders in the Middle East, the Near East and Russia, he has succeeded in instilling a new confidence in American might and in American determination to work a just and lasting peace after the war that has been greatly beneficial to the Allied cause.

He has convinced the rulers and the peoples he has visited that the United States is determined to win the war, that we have the resources necessary to win, and that we are determined not to let the world down after the final victory is won. He was able to accomplish this not by any superior diplomatic usage, but as a plain-spoken, forceful type of American businessman who carried conviction in his straightforward, honest way of presenting things.

OFFICIAL REPORTS That the rulers he has conferred with and the peoples whom he has seen have been impressed with his presence is affirmed by the confidential official reports which have come back to Washington on his visit. In Ankara, for example, he succeeded so well in convincing the Turks of an ultimate Allied victory that Anthony Eden, the British foreign minister, sent him a telegram of "most grateful appreciation. In Syria, Iraq and Iran where the British are not altogether too popular and where British occupation forces have necessarily incurred some degree of hostility with the local people, he performed equally valuable work by emphasizing the unity of American and British aims.

In at least one public speech, after proclaiming the inevitability of an Allied victory, he awakened neutral nations to a consciousness of their responsibility by declaring that the time has come for all nations and peoples "to stand up and be counted."

GOOD-WILL WILLKIE WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Whether or not it was a part of the original design, the present journey of Mr. Wendell L. Willkie to Allied world capitals is beginning to assume an important and significant purpose.

The former Republican presidential nominee is emerging as the outstanding American good-will ambassador of our times.

It is doubtful that Mr. Willkie visualized for himself any such role when he set out on his journey a short while ago. More than likely he was prompted to make the trip as much out of curiosity as anything else, plus a natural desire to make himself useful in any way possible to the Allied war cause. Mr. Roosevelt, in giving him credentials which clothed his mission with a semi-official status, may or may not have foreseen the results of the Willkie visit.

What Mr. Willkie has accomplished so far seems to lie outside of the field of things that could have been preconceived. In the various conferences he has held with governmental leaders in the Middle East, the Near East and Russia, he has succeeded in instilling a new confidence in American might and in American determination to work a just and lasting peace after the war that has been greatly beneficial to the Allied cause.

He has convinced the rulers and the peoples he has visited that the United States is determined to win the war, that we have the resources necessary to win, and that we are determined not to let the world down after the final victory is won. He was able to accomplish this not by any superior diplomatic usage, but as a plain-spoken, forceful type of American businessman who carried conviction in his straightforward, honest way of presenting things.

OFFICIAL REPORTS That the rulers he has conferred with and the peoples whom he has seen have been impressed with his presence is affirmed by the confidential official reports which have come back to Washington on his visit. In Ankara, for example, he succeeded so well in convincing the Turks of an ultimate Allied victory that Anthony Eden, the British foreign minister, sent him a telegram of "most grateful appreciation. In Syria, Iraq and Iran where the British are not altogether too popular and where British occupation forces have necessarily incurred some degree of hostility with the local people, he performed equally valuable work by emphasizing the unity of American and British aims.

In at least one public speech, after proclaiming the inevitability of an Allied victory, he awakened neutral nations to a consciousness of their responsibility by declaring that the time has come for all nations and peoples "to stand up and be counted."

TALKS WITH PEOPLE The thing that has impressed the people of the countries Mr. Willkie has visited is his habit of not confining himself to conferences with government leaders. Declining the usual parades and motor tours of foreign dignitaries, he has made a practice of going afoot with interpreters to the bazaars and coffee shops as a means of getting first-hand information from the man on the street. He has about a breezy informality that has been a surprise and a delight to people who have been accustomed to more cloistered behavior on the part of high-ranking British and American officials.

Under the circumstances, it is not difficult to understand why the Russians at Kuibyshev gave him what has been described as the greatest ovation accorded a private individual since the days of the Tsars. He met with similar receptions in Turkey and the Near East. In Bagdad even the veiled women on the streets cheered and waved to him.

CONVINCED RUSSIANS Perhaps one of the most important services he has rendered, however, the Russian mind of an idea that the American capitalist groups are responsible for the failure of the second front to materialize because of disagreement with the Communistic economic concept. The second front will be opened, he assured them, and he also convinced the Russian people that it should come, to his way of thinking, at the earliest possible moment.

If Mr. Willkie succeeds as he has in China and India as he has elsewhere in convincing the people of the ultimate success of our arms, he will have made a contribution to the Allied war cause far more important than anything that has yet been accomplished on the psychological front.

SILHOUETTES

never save Britain. America is very disappointed at the return she has obtained for having sacrificed her badly needed planes, tanks and guns to Britain.

And, on February 24, they tried to tell the British: "Roosevelt obtained the highest price ever paid for any war material in the destroyer-bases deal. The North Americans are highly displeased with this most successful blackmail business of all time."

About The Pacific. They radioed to Britain on February 27: "The British Empire had to take the inevitable consequences of the outbreak of war in the east, while America, who had no interests in the maintenance of the British empire, carried out naval maneuvers in the Mississippi."

On the same topic, they radioed to us, on February 25: "Churchill did everything to get Japan into this war when all other efforts to bring in the United States of America had failed."

One more example. On February 21, to Britain: "The English merchants still do not see how they are driven to the aid of the robust Roosevelt Yankees."

On the other hand, on March 4, to the U. S.: "The entire wealth of America is being thrown into the ocean. Nothing will be received in exchange for all this lend-lease."

Only One Thing More Stupid. There is only one thing in all the world, more fatheaded than Axis propaganda.

That is the person, here or in Britain, who prances one iota of credence in anything they say.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today. From the news columns of Friday, September 30, 1917: "More than 2,000 men in the state of Georgia will be subject to arrest and court-martial as deserters under the recent orders of Provost Marshal General Cowder, unless they report either in person, by letter or by wire to the adjutant general's office by October 2."

And Fifty Years Ago. From the news columns of Friday, September 30, 1892: "Some cracks in the fence, a bad, bad dog, some noisy school children, a worthy lady and a hose pipe all combine to make an interesting comedy-drama in which Calhoun Beavers comes in at the finale."

Moonlight. Soft moonlight gleaming over the land is the tender touch of our Father's hand. Bright moonlight gleaming is a silver path from heaven to me. PEARL RIDLEY GRUBBS.

Stupid Propaganda. The stupidity of some of the Nazi propaganda is colossal. Particularly the stuff that is sent out over the short-wave radio broadcasts. They never hesitate, these Nazis, to contradict themselves in consecutive breaths. They care not if they are diametrically opposed to each other.

Their only hope is that someone, somewhere, will hear one lie and believe it.

It is possible, in working with short wave radio, to so "beam" a broadcast for one area it cannot be heard in another. So the Nazis, forgetting that communication between the Allied Nations is free—or ignoring this fact—tell one set of lies in broadcasts "beamed" to Great Britain, and another set of lies in broadcasts "beamed" to the United States. The object, of course, is to sow distrust and discord between these two great allies.

Just to show how ridiculously they lie and contradict and try to confuse, here are some examples taken from actual German shortwave broadcasts.

Different Stories. In a broadcast sent to the United States on February 4, the Nazis said: "So long as the mothers of the United States are so willing, England will fight to the last drop of Iowa blood."

Just two days later, on February 6, in a broadcast beamed to Great Britain, the same Nazi speaker said: "The British troops which have been stationed in North Ireland will now be released for active service. The British do the fighting while the Americans carry on in the home garrisons."

Do you see the trick which passes for subtlety in the German mind? To make us think we are being used by the British, to their advantage, and to make the British think they are being sacrificed to protect American troops kept safely at home.

On February 6, the following sentence was broadcast to Britain: "The strategic directions are dictated solely by Washington. Washington orders, Churchill obeys."

On January 29, broadcast to the United States: "The British determine Washington's policy. Churchill requests, Roosevelt obeys."

The same idea for both of us, you see. The idea that the other fellow is running the show and we are merely the pawns for his gambit.

Which Is True? Why, Neither. On February 2 they tried to tell us: "... the United States can

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Billy NEW YORK, Sept. 29. This one will have a touch of World Series in it, too. Billy Sunday was as American as Kansas and couldn't have thrived as a preacher of religion in any other country. He had been a mediocre ball-player and, when he took to preaching, used an exaggerated baseball slang which, nevertheless wowed the public.

After he gained momentum local ministerial councils would get together and present inducements to bring him to town and put on his show, which was loud and vulgar, in the belief that he would bring strays back to the fold and, in whole effect, revive religious feeling among the people. Some Protestant clergymen held, however, that he only excited them and that soon after he left town they would blackslide.

The newspapers of those days were pretty yellow at best and even the good ones would thump the tub for Sunday, assign their best news reporters and feature writers to cover his meetings and publicize the homely, or in the word of the day, folksy, simplicity of Bill and Ma.

Even the And even some of the reporters, who were supposed to be cynical, would go nuts toward the end of the assignment and hit the sawdust trail, with Bill howling out their names and putting on the old hallelujah. In Des Moines, Iowa, my roommate, a worldly kid, but not a hardened sinner, withstood Sunday's preaching until the last day, when he got religion and tossed his paycheck, probably $27.50, on the drum. He, no doubt, got a standoff, however, for it was Bill's custom to speed a portion of his gate for presents for the reporters on closing night and my roomy got a fine suitcase which may have cost as much as his donation.

In Philadelphia, a great old-time reporter who liked to drink a little went up the pole for the duration of the meeting and would yell Homer Rodeheaver's beautiful hymn, "The Brewer's Big Horses Won't Run Over Me," with wild piety, and Bill and Ma were making their way had him saved for good until closing night, when he reeled all over the stage bawling, "The Brewer's Big Horses Done Run Over Me."

You never could tell how much money Bill made, but he used to get a guarantee and all he could do was stand with people getting souped up in his intimate chats with God and the devil, he must have had many emotional gifts like my roommate's.

Cheap But once, in Tampa, along toward the end of his career, a head-waitress in the old Tampa Bay hotel said he was the cheapest tipper she had ever seen, and she had waited on many ball clubs, which don't run a high score in this respect. It was a good furlong from the kitchen to Sunday's big, round table, where he fed his staff, and the little girls would lug in great tonnage of those heavy, old-style hotel plates and bowls which went with the American plan meals and cover much mileage in the pockets of three meals a day. The head-waitress said Bill's standard tip was a dime a head, although, in his store, if the people didn't shower down he would give them the devil for a lot of cheap skates trying to mooch their way to heaven.

My friend, Broadway Johnny Cox, an honest but practical Hell's Kitchen boy who had fought and been hit in France happened into Tampa during the Sunday revival with his meal ticket, a Hoosier named Farmer Joe Cooper, to fight some friend for $750. Fighters used to fight their friends often on their country tours, and it was well understood that in some of these contests they did not put forth what old William Muldoon would call their best efforts.

Sunday, however, always tried to kick off all competition and he got Mr. Cox's fight rubbed out on grounds of impiety, with an additional insinuation that it was to be a fake. This offended Mr. Cox, so he got bottled and held forth in the big lobby of the old Tampa Bay on Sunday's selfishness and insincerity.

"I been seeing him in a dozen towns all over the country," Mr. Cox yelled, "and he has always got that trained devil on his hip. He wins the first fall, the devil wins the second and Sunday always takes the third, and the bums room together, the pair of them."

Bill could be arrogant and abusive, as well as pious, and often denounced startled and unfortunate individuals conspicuously. Uncle Ben Atwell, who was out with an old Winter Garden Passing Show, outsmarted him in Boston. Uncle Ben got a dozen cuties out of the chorus and had them hit the sawdust trail harmonizing "Brighten the Corner Where You Are," and doing the shim, which then was regarded as a very suggestive dance. Bill roared, but they continued down the aisle, made their turn and went back up and out, still bartering his theme song.

Well, one night after one of those Cubs series in Chicago a few years ago, I did some extensive sitting up over our sports editor after the Tribune went to bed, and as we neared home out noise we thought it might be politic to buy some flowers for his wife. So we stopped in a little neighborhood shop, which had living quarters in the rear, and a woman in a ragged old sweater jacket came out to take care of us. She said she was Ma Sunday, and they were staying with relatives who owned the flower store, and Bill was sick of a heart attack in a back room and couldn't even listen to the World Series on the radio.

Soon afterward Bill Sunday died, pretty well forgotten by then and, if appearances meant anything, not a rich man in the end, notwithstanding his enormous income in his heyday as a preacher of the gospel.

The metal salvage movement, I read in the papers, has led to the junking of many old printing presses, mostly from country weekly offices which long ago installed more modern equipment.

That's all right. The old stuff should be junked, along with the old cannon from the Spanish War.

But there are old-time country editors—which means owners, publishers, circulation managers, advertising managers—and frequently printers, combined in one person indivisible—who hold more sentiment about an ancient press than they would feel toward a personal letter from Lafayette.

The Washington hand press was an institution. Tradition says Benjamin Franklin perfected it. It can't testify to that. But it printed many millions of copies of country weeklies and many political sheets in its time.

I am not sure The Constitution possesses one. I know the late lamented Georgian did. It was a true antique, dating from Washington's day, but a replica. It was darn useful. For pulling full-page proofs of an ad, with "art." Art, in a composing room, is anything with a picture in it, from a Moon Mullins strip to an exquisite half-page of beautiful models in evening gowns or bathing suits.

The Washington hand-press has a table, upon which the form full of type and zinc cuts is laid. It has a base and a top, if I make myself clear, which I doubt. And a handle. A great, big, fat knuckle joint lever, hunk in the middle.

Wonderful Print
You can fix up a page ad, with halftones, put some ink on your hand roller, roll it over the form, spread on a sheet of paper, newspaper size, and bear down on that handle. And what a fine proof you'll get! It looks like a first edition of a volume of poems, limited to 99 copies, each signed by the author. You can't get a print like that off the modern web presses which spin off 48-page papers several hundred a minute.

Unlike many old-timers, I wasn't raised in a country print shop, so I can't talk from experience. But just for the fun of it I have tackled that fat wooden handle on a Washington handpress occasionally.

There's a trick in it. I have watched an anemic printer's devil in a country shop swing it to the tune of 1,500 circulation—knowing that he'd have to swing it 1,500 more times to print the other side of the paper. But five or six tussles with that handle fixed me.

It starts easy and it ends easy. But there's the middle you must buck. Get the rhythm and you're all set, say the experts. A child could do it.

What kind of a child? A gorilla's child? An elephant's?

Well, except for special uses the grand old Washington hand-press has become a relic fit only for junk. Perhaps it will serve the nation more effectively as part of a gun than as a press. But I don't know.

If it hadn't been for presses like that there would have been no American Revolution.

From the Boss

Post card from Major (beg pardon, Lieutenant-Colonel) Clark Howell, in uniform at Camp Shelby, Miss. He must have had time enough on his hands to read my column, something he would never confess when he was here on the job, because he writes:

"You wouldn't like this place. Spring housecleaning every day and no place to go. And dogs are strictly not wanted."

A standard typewriter is almost as durable as a bronze statue or a gray mule. It will take a lot of abuse. A reporter's typewriter is rarely covered and never cleaned. But it keeps on working, after a fashion.

But perhaps there is sabotage in this shop. It is my custom to sneak out early and go home or elsewhere, leaving my typewriter open to attack by anybody on the night shift.

And when I come down next morning the margin stops have been changed, the ribbon refuses to move or stay in place, the keys are tied in a knot.

I don't know why and I don't

know how. Don Marquis used to have—or pretend to have—a pet cockroach named Archie who appeared late of nights to eat the office paste and leave him pleasant little contributions, typed on his machine. But a cockroach couldn't ball up a typewriter as efficiently as my callers. Perhaps they use a hatchet.

This Sunny South

It was my displeasure to meet at the Terminal Station early Monday morning an old friend named Raymond B. Jones, returning from Florida to his native land of Minneapolis.

I had risen at 7 a. m. to find our front porch thermometer registering 40 degrees. It usually runs about two degrees colder than the official.

My friend Jones was shivering in a warm corner of the station. He wore a well-tailored suit of dark blue palm beach, without a vest, white shoes and a Panama hat. And his teeth were chattering.

"The sunny south!" he remarked, with a leer and a sneer.

"You said it, brother," I agreed. "But the nearest I ever came to sunstroke was in your frigid Minneapolis one August."

COPY NAZI WAY WHEN IT LEADS TO VICTORY

Editor, Constitution: There is some objection to the manpower draft because it would be copying the Nazis. If we are to discard a method or an idea because the Nazis use it, let us be thorough and consistent, and not use machineguns, artillery, airplanes, bombs, or a thousand other things because the Nazis use them. Let us, further, not use our arms, legs, eyes; let us not eat or sleep; let us not do anything the Nazis do.

Also, let us forget that the manpower draft, while unpleasant to us, is more unpleasant to the Nazis; that while self-regimentation and forced service may be irksome, it is and will be less irksome than being slaves to the Nazis; that it is better to serve against them than to serve the Nazis.

In accepting the manpower, the industrial, the agricultural draft, as we have already accepted the military draft, although there were some who cried, "Like the Nazis," even then; those who are sensible will realize that in doing these things we are undoing the Nazi even though doing somewhat as he. The difference in our act and his lies, not in the method, but the motive of the act. We mobilize to fight for freedom; they mobilize to fight for slavery; that is imitating the Nazis?

Those of you who would long have liberty must awhile give it up. We must mobilize all our resources to overthrow the Nazis. The sooner they are overthrown the easier and better victory, for each month our enemies grow stronger.

HOW TO CONSERVE ON TRASH AND GARBAGE

Editor, Constitution: Our sanitary situation is sure to be worse before it is better, therefore, let me tell of three plans that work well at any time.

1. Bury vegetable and meat trash a few inches underground. This benefits the ground and saves space and labor for the trash gatherers. If your ground is too hard now, dig it up after it is softened by rain. Cover any meat or bones buried with something heavy so that cats and dogs can't get it.

2. The bottoms of my trash cans rusted out too soon, so I painted them inside and out, then put oiled paper from cereal boxes or bread loaves etc., in the bottom of the kitchen can, and something under the yard can to keep them as dry as possible.

3. Put leaves, grass, weeds, etc., in a pen or fence corner—distant from any house—a different place the second and third years; wetting the trash thoroughly as piled in, and from time to time in the dry weather, so that it never dries out, and you get a good compost, and if you add lime, ashes and high-grade fertilizers as desired, you get the best plant food. The seedman would like to sell you a preparation to hasten the decay of the trash.

CHURCH PROMOTES BOND SALES—Haygood Memorial Methodist church members from Sunday to Sunday make purchases of war bonds and stamps, and then donate them to a building fund for a new church. Dr. Luther B. Bridges, pastor of the church, is assistant administrator for bonds and stamps in Georgia, and is promoter of this project. He is seen standing at left of booth, witnessing the rush for bonds.

Atlanta Church DAR Invites Selling Bonds Anderson To At Its Entrance Sing in Concert

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP) The Daughters of the American Revolution today invited Marian Anderson, world-famous Negro contralto, to appear in Constitution Hall in the first of a series of war benefit concerts.

Three years ago the DAR refused to permit the singer to appear in Constitution Hall for a concert on Easter Sunday, April 9, 1939.

Mrs. John Bayley O'Brien, DAR press chairman, said the invitation extended today followed a request from the singer's manager that she be allowed to give a concert in the hall.

In 1939, after the refusal of the organization to let the singer use Constitution Hall, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt resigned from the organization.

Ten days later the DAR president, then Mrs. Henry M. Robert Jr., said the bar against use of the hall by colored artists had been adopted in 1927 because "exclusion showed the society could not go contrary to or further than the customs existing in the city in which its properties were located."

Senator Norris Seeks Re-election

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP) Senator Norris, Independent, Nebraska, in formally announcing today his candidacy for re-election, called upon Nebraska voters to compare his record of 40 years in congress with that of any other senatorial candidate in his state.

"I am reminded that this experience," the 81-year-old senator declared in a statement, "is valuable and of great assistance and that no new man could take my place—however great his ability—and fulfill these duties without some years of experience."

The Nebraskan reiterated that he had hoped to retire to private life and spend his remaining years in the state where he had lived since 1885, but would be a candidate in view of the Nebraska petitions asking him to do so and also in view of many letters from all over the nation.

Donald Davis Named Resource Co-ordinator

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP) The War Production Board announced today that Donald D. Davis, president of the General Mills Company, of Minneapolis, had been appointed to "develop an over-all national program, integrated and co-ordinated with over-all strategic requirements," to make the most effective use of national resources.

Davis, who began his new work immediately, was given the title of director of WPB's new program co-ordinating division and given responsibility for all recommendations it makes to Ferdinand Eberstadt, vice chairman on program determination.

Eberstadt said Davis had "an outstanding record of success in business" and "wide experience in the production field." During World War I he was a major in the Army's air service.

Steel in Famous 'Tombs' Pitched onto Scrap Pile

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP) Steel grilles, windows, bars and metal cell walls that once confined some of the worst criminals in American history in the famous old Tombs prison here were pitched onto the scrap pile today to be melted down for war use.

Salvage from the old landmark that housed the "Bridge of Sighs," and which was closed a year ago, will probably total about 100 tons in all, scrap officials said.

The steel is high grade—it had to be to resist hacksaws.

Good Morning

SIM AND SUE.

"Mother, it's Uncle Mose!"
"I thought I recognized the click or his old cane on the driveway, and that strange shuffle of his old shoes, wrapped with thick pieces of sacks. Come, dear, let's go in the kitchen and ask Mary to give him a cup of coffee and some breakfast. . . . Uncle Mose, how Daddy did love to hear him talk. I wonder if Uncle Mose knows. . . ."

Uncle Mose had gone around the house to the kitchen door, and Mary had called him there by the stove when Sue and her mother got to the kitchen. They paused at the door, for he was talking to Mary.

"Tell me, how's de folks? How's de Missus and de big Doctor? And how's de chillun? Whut yer say? De Doctor's dun gone? Is yer tryin' ter wurry me, gal?"

Mary was trying to get Uncle Mose to understand that Dr. Wilson had gone with the Emory Unit—that he was in the Army—that he wouldn't be home, perhaps, for a long time.

Uncle Mose dropped the spoon on the floor. His old white head was bowed. He was saying something softly and slowly to himself. Sue and her mother tipped into the sink—her face distraught. She wiped the tears from her eyes with her apron. Sue clutched her mother's hand.

"Lawd! O my gud Lawd! Have mercy. Bless de Doctor, Lawd! Bring him ter us agin, Lawd! . . ."

And now she was talking to Uncle Mose, saying the situation, as the child so often does. The mother had tipped softly back to her room. Sue couldn't see Uncle Mose for awhile. Sue explained that Sim had gone early Saturday morning with his Scout troop for a hike, and she and mother would go later to town. Uncle Mose was deeply disturbed. He hadn't left his cabin in the river bottom for months. It was about this time of the year that he had always trudged into town to see the doctor. The doctor always loaded him up with warm clothes for the winter, and some money for his coffee and sugar and chewing tobacco. Uncle Mose had plenty of food that he raised on the little clearing which the doctor had provided for him.

"Let me look and see, Uncle Mose, if the doctor has an overcoat or anything I might get up for you," said Mrs. Wilson, after talking to Uncle Mose about it all. Going to her husband's room, and to his closet, she turned on the light. She had not felt much like going through his things since he left. And there, right before her eyes, she read:

"Uncle Mose—give him this package when he comes." Again she wept. And now the big package was in the kitchen. Uncle Mose insisted on opening it. There was the big fur overcoat, the heavy wool suit the doctor wore last winter, socks, shirts, two pairs of shoes, underwear, and a red tie!

Greer Garson's Husband Files Divorce Petition

LONDON, Sept. 29.—(AP)—A petition for divorce on grounds of desertion has been filed against Greer Garson, star of the movie "Mrs. Miniver," by Edward A. A. Snelson, a member of the civil service in India, it was announced in the divorce court calendar today. It was included in the un-defended list for the term opening October 12.

The British actress won a divorce from Snelson in Los Angeles May 8, 1940. Suing under the name of Eileen Evelyn G. Snelson, she testified that their marriage lasted but one month and five days in the autumn of 1933 and ended because of her husband's temperamental outbursts and insistence that she accompany him to India. British law does not recognize some American divorces.

60-Day Divorce Lapse Abandoned

Abandonment of the "cooling off" period of 60 days before trial of a divorce case was announced yesterday in a new rule adopted by Judge A. L. Etheridge, of Fulton domestic relations court.

The new rule permits trial of a divorce case during the first term after the case has been filed, if both parties consent, and there is room for it on the calendar. It is now possible, it was said, to secure both first and second verdicts in 81 days, while under the previous rule forbidding trials in the first term after filing, at least 141 days would have to elapse.

CLEARINGS BOOSTED.
Bank clearings for yesterday totaled $13,900,000, compared with $11,100,000 for the corresponding day last year.

ROUND up your scrap metal—it's needed to make steel. Steel for armor plate to protect him from bombs and bullets. Steel for weapons to help him do the job that must be done before he can come home again.

You don't want production figures. It's enough to know that 50% of all new steel is made of scrap—that our steel mills now have only enough scrap in sight to last another 30 days at the most!

What happens after that depends on all of us. If production fails and you've not done your part, will you rest easy?

Next week we're starting a collection drive—to build the biggest stockpile of scrap metal you've ever seen. Then when the mills need it, we'll have it—because you came through—for his sake!

All in the Game

By JACK TROY

Taking the Champ Hope springs eternal for the underdog. Man, a selfish beast, envies success. And so in sports the great majority always pull for the champion to get beat.

But in sports there is, too, a creed among professional odds-makers that pays off in the old do-rey-mi. It is to string along with the champion until he loses.

The professional gentlemen do not let the heart rule the head. And so it is that the New York Yankees are favored to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals in the 1942 World Series.

"Don't sell the Cardinals short, with Cooper, Lanier, White, Beazley, Gumbert and Pollett on the pitching staff. They can't lose!" cry the champions of the underdog.

"The Yankees haven't got any left-handed pitching, except for old Lefty Gomez. The Card left-handers alone are enough to beat them," shout other supporters of the National League champions. "Russo has a sore arm."

It all sounds like a lot of wishful thinking. The Yankees won 103 games, clinched the American league pennant, as usual, well in advance of the season close.

When considering pitching, don't overlook the fact that the Yankees won on pitching when their hitting was off in the early stages of the season.

Brooklyn had good pitching last year. Thing is that only once since 1934 has a National League team won a World Series. Cincinnati defeated Detroit in 1940.

When has a National League team last defeated the Yankees?

It happened in 1926. Alexander's heroic pitching overshadowed Ruth's slugging and the St. Louis Cardinals won, four games to three.

A Real Record As one who, back in March, picked the Cardinals to win in the National League and the Yankees to repeat in the American, I cannot help but feel the best policy is to stick with the Bronx Bombers until they lose again.

Look what the Yankees have done since last they lost to a representative of the senior circuit—

	Won	Lost
1927—Yankees vs. Pittsburgh	4	0
1928—Yankees vs. Cardinals	4	0
1932—Yankees vs. Chicago	4	0
1936—Yankees vs. Giants	4	2
1937—Yankees vs. Giants	4	1
1938—Yankees vs. Chicago	4	0
1939—Yankees vs. Cincinnati	4	0
1941—Yankees vs. Brooklyn	4	1
Totals	32	4

Pretty impressive figures, don't you think? Call the Cardinals a team of destiny or whatever you will, but the fact remains that the Yankees have lost only four games in the last eight World Series.

And that is good enough for me.

Jackets Pitch In

Opponents of Georgia Tech, an early season surprise team of the Southeastern Conference, would have looked askance at the goings-on yesterday morning at Grant field.

They would have seen the huskies, in three, handling a robust "victim" with care and moving him to a waiting stretcher.

The entire squad took part in stretcher drill. Future opponents might easily have misunderstood the intent.

But it was all for the Red Cross. A first aid station has been established in the training rooms at Georgia Tech.

The Tech players will serve as stretcher bearers in time of disaster caused by enemy action in the Techwood sector.

The jacket coaches and players are putting their shoulders to the war effort. The boys absorbed their instructions quickly as first aid director, W. W. Nealy, imparted the finer points in the care and handling of wounded civilians.

Fellows like Red Eaves, Jack Helms, Tom Anderson, Eddie Prokop, Clint Castleberry, Jack Marshall, et al., are learning to handle a stretcher with the ease and facility that they play the game of football.

Said Oby Brewer, Red Cross chairman, "This unit will be the best conditioned stretcher unit we'll have in the city of Atlanta."

Tech players agreed they'd be fortunate if actual patients proved as attractive as Blanche Albert or Mary Kambe.

Coach Bill Alexander was happy to enlist the players in this cause and to turn over training quarters as a first aid station.

Litwhiler Plays Without Error

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Danny Litwhiler, outfielder for the last-place National League Phils, set a new major league fielding record for outfielders by playing the entire season without making an error. Phil officials said today.

Official fielding figures for the 1942 season are not yet available, but the previous record by outfielders for fewest errors in a season is two, held jointly by Edgar Hahn, of the White Sox, in 1907, and Pete Fox, of Detroit, in 1938.

"I'll trade this record for a couple of home runs any day," declared Danny.

Terror Faces 'Hottest Star' In Mat World

If the Golden Terror is a mere man and his make-up is flesh and blood, he is bound to meet his master one night in the wrestling ring. To date, this huge masked destroyer has whipped 59 opponents without ever having been beaten. Fans are irked, too, because of the fact that while the Terror and his manager have assaulted their opponents with everything but the ring posts, getting two local foes to the hospital, not once has the Terror lost a single drop of blood.

"Beat the Terror; take off his mask; give us a man who can do the job," cry the paying customers. And that is exactly what frantic promoters the country over have been trying, thus far, to do. The toughest they are the harder they fall, when they meet the Terror. However, Friday night the masked dreadsnaught faces an opponent who has whipped everything in sight in Angelo Cistoldi. In his two 1942 starts here Cistoldi has created a big stir by conquering the famed Danno O'Mahoney and the clever Ralph Garibaldi. Many local fans had Cistoldi as the new king of the mat.

Friday's semifinal should be just as good as the main event. Mammoth Tiny Morgan grapples Chief Chewacki. The winner will probably get a shot at the Terror. Chewacki is far from satisfied with last week's result and wants a return chance. Morgan, weighing 310 pounds, has been carefully avoided by the Terror, who says "Tiny must first dispose of the tricky Cypsy before he'll give him a match."

Cooper-Ruffing Pitchers Battle Looms in Opener

Cards Poised To Turn Back Cocky Yanks

St. Louis Quiet, But Park Will Be Jammed for Start of Classic.

By JUDSON BAILEY.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Old Red Ruffing, the warhorse who has pitched five previous World Series openers, is ready to lead off again tomorrow for the New York Yankees as they face the St. Louis Cardinals and Mort Cooper in baseball's first World Series in almost a quarter of a century.

Manager Joe McCarthy, of the mighty Yanks, told reporters on the train bringing the world champions here today that he would string along with the 38-year-old righthander who has undertaken the majority of McCarthy's most important mound assignments for many years. This season he has won 14 and lost 7.

The wild, unbridled enthusiasm that usually surrounds a series was missing tonight in St. Louis, even though the classic of the diamond was returning here for the first time since 1934. The war seemed to be responsible for the calm reception, but it did not keep the local fans from gobbling up all seats placed on advance sale and there was no doubt that Sportsman's Park would be filled to capacity for the opening game.

All the Cardinals' hopes for conquering the heavily favored Yankees were wrapped up in Cooper taking the first game. The robust right-hander, who won 22 games and lost seven this season, while scoring ten shutouts, was definitely designated as the Redbirds' leadoff hurler by Manager Billy Southworth.

"AS COOPER GOES."

Win or lose, he was sure to come back again later in the series and, in the event that it stretches seven games, might make three appearances. He has been given the responsibility of pacing the entire Cardinal staff and the result of his first effort generally was expected to determine the whole character of the series.

Advance ticket sales indicated an estimated crowd of 35,000 by the 2:30 p. m. (eastern war time) starting time tomorrow.

Whether McCarthy, as in the past, was relying on experience or the idea the veteran Ruffing could prove easily come back for a second appearance if the series was extended, none could say. The wily Yankee chief refused to comment on his pitching arrangements.

He did not say whether Ernie Bonham, who because of his lustrous record of 21 victories and 5 defeats was considered the champions' mound ace, would hurl the second game Thursday or would be held for the third or fourth games at Yankee stadium in New York.

The teams appeared well matched for a series that might be the tightest the Yankees have had since they were last beaten in 1926—the year the Cardinals won their first flag.

Besides their fine pitching staff, which has the advantage of including two good southpaws, the Cardinals will depend mainly on their phenomenal speed. Outfielders Stan Musial and Enos (Country) Slaughter are two of the National League's leading hitters, but the club as a whole has no power compared with the Bronx Bombers.

The spirit of the Redbirds is one of the most noticeable features of their success. It showed in the records by their overcoming a 10-game deficit in the National League, winning 43 of their last 52 games and finishing with a total of 106 victories—the most any club in the senior circuit has cornered since 1909. This was three more, incidentally, than the Yankees made, although the champions never were forced to pull the throttle all the way out.

In this respect the present edition of the Yankees is harder to gauge than the Cardinals. Everyone has seen what St. Louis can do when the pressure is on, but the Yanks have never had to pass this test.

DICKEY HAS FADED. They do stack up with the great championship teams that swept series in straight games. Bill Dickey and Red Rolfe have faded since the time that they were supreme at their positions. Joe DiMaggio and Charley Keller have not been having their best year. Roy Cullenbine in right field is no match for Tommy Henrich, who enlisted recently in the Coast Guard.

But Joe Gordon at second base is incomparable, the pitching is good and the hitting is still counted in home runs—of which the Yankees have made more than 100 this season.

Most of the Yankees are veterans of World Series. They have played in Sportsman's Park many times and are familiar with its grassless infield, the distance to the fences and the winds and shadows. On the other hand, not one of the Cardinals ever has played in a World Series and few of them ever have been inside the mammoth, triple-decked Yankee Stadium, where the third, fourth and fifth games are scheduled this weekend.

The probable lineups for the first game:

NEW YORK—Rizzuto, ss (284); Rolfe, 3b (221); Cullenbine, rf (290); DiMaggio, cf (304); Keller, lf (289); Gordon, 2b (320); Dickey, c (295); Hassett, 1b (285); Ruffing, p (147).

ST. LOUIS—Brown, 2b (256); ST. LOUIS—Brown, 2b (256); Moore, cf (285); Slaughter, rf (317); Musial, lf (316); W. Cooper, c (283); Hopp, 1b (258); Kurowski, 3b (250); Marion, ss (278); M. Cooper, p (22-7).

Umpires: Magerkurth and Barr (NL); Summers and Hubbard

(AL). Alternates—Dunn (NL) and Basil (AL). (Assignments not yet announced.)

NO. 1 SERIES SLABMEN—Morton Cooper, left, and Ernie Bonham, both right-handers, are the ace pitchers in the World Series beginning today at St. Louis. Cooper will open for the Cardinals against Red Ruffing, who will be making his fifth championship start. Joe McCarthy is holding Bonham for the second game.

Experts Pick Yanks To Win In Hard Battle

Many Writers Think World Series Will Go Full Seven Games.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Experts congregating here for the World Series climbed aboard the bandwagon of the New York Yankees in great clusters tonight, although most of them thought the St. Louis Cardinals would make matters interesting.

Ken Smith, the New York Daily Mirror's observer who picked the exact order of the finish in both major leagues in the Associated Press poll of baseball writers last spring, led the swing for the world champions.

A personal rooster for the New York Giants and a veteran National League traveling correspondent, Smith declared: "I'm tired being wrong because of sentiment. I'm picking the Yanks this time."

Al Horwitz, president of the Baseball Writers' Association, was one of the few who came out with a prediction that the Yanks would sweep the series, however.

Here are some of the views: Gayle Talbot, Associated Press—Yankees with the series going the limit.

Gordon Cobbledick, Cleveland Plain-Dealer—Yankees, believe it or not, in six.

Shirley Fovich, Washington Post—The champs in five.

John Drebiner, New York Times—"I'm like Smith. I'm through picking against the Yanks. I think they'll win."

Stan Baumgartner, Philadelphia Inquirer—"I'm going out on the limb for the Cardinals—based on one man, Mort Cooper."

John Carmichael, Chicago Daily News—Looks like the Yankees again in six.

Judson Bailey, Associated Press—Yanks are in for a battle, but they ought to win.

Roy Stockton, St. Louis Post-Dispatch—"I'd have to pick the Cards anyway, I suppose, but I really think they will win."

John Drohan, Boston Traveler—Cards in six.

Joe Williams, New York World-Telegram—"I'm too old to be put on the spot. I pick the Yanks in seven, but if Cooper wins tomorrow then I believe the Cards will win."

Rud Rennie, New York Herald Tribune—"The Yankees have everything. They can steal home, too."

Gerry Moore, Boston Globe—"I like the Cardinals."

My Turklin, New York Daily News—Yanks in five.

Joe Cashman, Boston American—Yanks in six.

See Taylor, Des Moines Register—"Pick Yanks, but Cards will make it close."

Leo MacDonald, Detroit Times—"I like those old, orthodox Yanks."

Warren Brown, Chicago Sun—"I think the Yanks will struggle through."

Herb Simons, Chicago Times—Yanks in six.

Tommy Devine, United Press—Yankees with the series going the distance.

Frank Lewis, Cleveland Press—Yanks in six.

John Cronley, Oklahoma City Daily Oklahoman—Four out of six for the Yanks.

Jackets Appear Weak Against 'Irish' Passes

Inexperienced Tech Backs Look Good on Offense, But Pitiful Under Aerial Attack.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Fully aware that they must stop the country's outstanding passer Saturday, Georgia Tech coaches yesterday stressed pass defense in a two and a half hour practice session which was topped off with a rough and tumble scrimmage.

Head Coach Bobby Dodd played the role of Angelo Bertelli, Notre Dame's ace passer, as the workout opened with the backs getting lessons in how to cover receivers operating from the Irish's tricky T formation.

For nearly 45 minutes Dodd threw passes at the varsity backs, stopping only now and then to offer words of advice. Bertelli wrecked the Techs last year with his tosses and Frank Leahy undoubtedly is plotting more of the same medicine for Saturday.

WEAK ON PASS DEFENSE. The T formation gives Bertelli numerous patterns to throw from and its plenty hard to set a defense against such an air attack.

More because of sentiment, I'm tired being wrong because of sentiment. I'm picking the Yanks this time. Al Horwitz, president of the Baseball Writers' Association, was one of the few who came out with a prediction that the Yanks would sweep the series, however.

Texas, Minnesota and Alabama Rated Nation's Top Teams

Tech, Georgia Ranked Even In 17th Spot

Athens Pre-Flight Team Placed 10th, Iowa's Cadets Fourth.

By PAUL B. WILLIAMSON.

While it's a statistical axiom that champions do not always repeat, there's no denying, on the basis of performance through the second week of the 1942 football season, that Texas and Minnesota stand out as possible repeaters.

Texas, the Williamson System 1941 national champions, and Minnesota, the System's 1941 runner-up, both came through last week's matches with such impressive victories over comparatively strong opponents that they rate first and second places respectively at the beginning of the season's third week.

Texas, using three teams, swamped Kansas State, 64 to 0, at Austin. Minnesota's Golden Gophers trounced a supposedly much-improved Pittsburgh Panther, 50 to 7, at Minneapolis. Time alone can tell, however, whether the 1941 leaders are going to repeat.

TESTS AHEAD.

What, for example, will the Gophers do against those surprising Naval Cadets of Iowa City coached by the former great Minnesota tutor, Bernie Bierman? What will the Gophers do against the Williamson System's present favorites, Michigan's Wolverines?

Speaking of Coach Fritz Crisler's Wolverines, the Williamson System probably scooped the nation in picking Michigan over Great Lakes Navy, 9 to 0. The same applies to Georgetown 7, Temple 0; William & Mary 3, Navy 0; North Carolina 6, Wake Forest 0; and St. Mary's Pre-Flighters 10, Oregon 9.

The System also correctly predicted many other results that had fans worried. Even the Tennessee-South Carolina scoreless tie wasn't altogether surprising to us. And, V. M. I. was figured as only a mighty fine shade better than Clemson—another scoreless tie.

Yes, there were some surprising upsets. Perhaps the biggest was the Southwestern Teachers, of San Marcos, Texas, nosing out Howard-Payne, 6 to 0. Another was Hardin-Simmons taking Baylor, 13 to 0.

Fans, nationally, were probably more stunned by the "freak" victories of the two Louisiana teams—Tulane and L. S. U.—respectively over Southern California (27-13) and Texas Aggies (16-7).

OTHER BIG UPSETS.

Other almost astounding upsets included: Geneva 26, Carnegie Tech 0—(how the mighty have fallen); Dartmouth 17, Holy Cross 6; Iowa 27, Nebraska 0; Georgia Tech 15, Auburn 0. The Georgia Pre-Flighters came from under wraps to down Pennsylvania, 14 to 6. Oklahoma Aggies tied Oklahoma, 0-0. Washington State stopped Stanford cold, 6 to 0. Kansas Wesleyan beat Washburn, 6 to 0. And a United States Coast Guard team supposedly shot to pieces, upset Wesleyan, of Connecticut, 14 to 6.

The System again broke its own prediction record by establishing its highest correct percentage for the second week of any season—practically 86 per cent. That was from reports on 160 games, including late scores from the previous week, in which there were only 20 upsets and five upsetting ties for an over-all efficiency of 85.94 per cent. The record for the season to date is 87.3 per cent correct. And, to repeat, that is despite the exceptional war difficulties of estimating 1942 pre-season ratings of the teams and the injection of so many service teams among the regular collegiate squads.

The System rates Georgia Tech and Georgia even at 92.6 per cent, a tie for 17th in the nation. The Georgia Pre-Flight team is rated 10th at 94.2.

RED CROSS AIDES—Georgia Tech football players yesterday became Red Cross aides. A first aid station has been established in the Tech training rooms and the boys were instructed as to how to handle "wounded" and to transport "casualties" on stretchers. Top picture shows Manning, Prokop, Jack Jordan and Plaster holding a stretcher bearing Nurse Blanche Albert. Nurse Mary Kambe stands in background. Center picture shows the boys with their stretchers and blankets on Grant Field. Lower picture shows W. W. Nealy, first aid director, instructing Eaves, Helms and Berman how to lift Sheldon, a "victim." Looking on, left to right, are Trainer Claud Bond and Red Cross Chairman Oby Brewer. Purples To Risk Record Thursday

Boys' High and Marist will tackle out-of-town foes Thursday night, the undefeated Purples taking on Darlington at Ponce de Leon and the Cadets journeying to Athens to meet last year's state Class B champions, Athens High, at Sanford stadium. The Commercial High-Tech High game has been shifted from Friday to Monday night.

Columbus Captures Little World Series

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 29.—(P)—Maybe it's an omen for the World Series between the Cardinals and Yankees that gets under way at St. Louis tomorrow: Columbus, St. Louis Cardinal American Association farm, was given scant chance to defeat Syracuse, International League, in the Little World Series. Tonight, however, the Red Birds chalked up

Costa Says His Success Due to Davis' Holding

Bulldog's Point-Kicker Says 'Racehorse' Is Best in World Under Terrific Pressure.

By R. P. HERRING.

Red and Black Sports Editor.

Perhaps two and two always make four, but when Leo Costa and Lamar Davis are put together, one and one make a meaning, of course, the point after touchdown.

Make no mistake about it, Costa is one of the greatest kickers in football history. Anyone who can score 82 points in four minutes of play is nothing short of a marvel. But Lamar Davis, the other half of the scoring combination, deserves a lot of credit.

In the words of the modest-mannered Leo, holding is much more important than kicking. "Lamar is the best holder in the world," Costa says, "and he can put that ball on a dime. He has missed the spot only twice since we have been working together and one of those misses was during practice."

Actually, Davis tries to put the ball on a spot smaller than a dime. He usually draws a cross on the ground with one line pointing straight between the goal posts and the other at right angles to the first line. Then when the ball is snapped "Racehorse" turns the lacing either directly toward Costa or in the opposite direction to make the ball perfectly balanced and puts it on the line intersection. This permits Leo to determine where the ball will be so he can take his stance and keep his eyes on the ground.

It all sounds mighty simple for Davis but remember he is under terrific pressure. As Davis waited

Occupation Wins Belmont Tuneup

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(P)—John Marsch's Occupation, two-year-old champion of the mid-west, won his first race in the east today when he turned up for Saturday's rich Belmont Futurity by galloping away from nine rivals in the $5,000 Valorous Purse at Belmont Park.

Strengthening down the six furlongs of the Widener straightaway in 1:09 3-5, Occupation finished five lengths in front of John Hay Whitney's Picket, with William Woodward's Bossuet in third place.

Occupation paid $4.10 for $2.

their fourth straight win, 4 to 2, to take the series, four games to one.

Trial Drawing Will Be Held Friday Night

DeKalb Bird Dog Races Are Scheduled Saturday and Sunday.

By JOHN MARTIN.

Nippy atmosphere of the past few days has brought back memories of last season and all those before it. It's what the man of the great outdoors has been waiting for. And behind the fence pointers and setters are sniffing the breezes and whimpering for action.

Although the quail season still is a long way off, bird dog men and their pointers and setters don't have to wait. Not if they leave their guns at home. Their first opportunity to unlimber will come this week-end in the first field trials of the DeKalb County Conservation Club.

The trials will be held Saturday and Sunday over the old Butler farm, 10 miles from Decatur. The first brace will be put down around 9 o'clock Saturday morning and in the two-day races will be puppies, derbies, all-age amateurs and shooting dogs in that order. Drawings will be made at 9 o'clock Friday night at the Candler hotel.

The trials are open to all bird dog owners and indications point to a large field, according to Chairman John McCarley, who said that 50 birds had been ordered from South Carolina to supplement the six native covies on the course. This should assure bird work throughout the trials.

As a preliminary to the races the DeKalb Club will hold a meeting Thursday night at the Candler hotel. Moving pictures of quail hunting and pointers, setters, springers and cockers in action will be shown during the dinner session. All members and friends of the DeKalb Club are invited.

Information on the trial may be obtained at Dearborn 2787 or Crescent 1849.

PREDICTION.

After giving the Cardinals the benefit of as much doubt as we can muster, this department's World Series choice is the Yanks in five games. . . . The Cards ought to win one, but we don't know when or how, since they can't match the Yanks at the plate and in pitching and fielding about the best you can give them is an even break.

'Bugs' Baer Says:

Some fans who paid ten pounds of scrap iron to see the Dodgers now want their money back.

Starting tomorrow you can get into the movies for five pounds of scrap metal or old rubber. Just drive up in the old jalopy and walk home.

Some of the boys in our local calaboose have ordered their iron cell bars to the victory drive.

The town jailer is thinking the matter over, especially as the boys have offered to substitute wooden ones.

P. S. Don't take too much iron out of the foundations. Remember the cosmetician who dug so much beauty clay out of the cellar that her shop caved in.

You like its taste... because it's PRIME MATURED

Experts of another era knew that the choicest whiskies were those aged in barrels placed high on the top racks of the warehouse, where air temperatures were favorable and constant. Those whiskies were prime in quality because they matured evenly... more softly and luxuriously. Today's experts prefer Ancient Age for the same reason. Every drop is prime-matured by a scientific duplication of this "top-racking" process. Prime-maturity explains why those in the know prefer the flavor of Ancient Age... sip by sip, from bottle to bottle...

Have you tried Ancient Age straight... or in a highball?

Kentucky Straight Bourbon Whiskey 90 Proof. This whiskey is 5 years old. Stag-Finch Distillers Corp., N. Y. C.

Mobile Yards To Launch Destroyer, Minesweeper

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 29.—(U.)—A sleek new destroyer and a minesweeper will be launched at the Gulf Shipbuilding Corporation yard here Sunday in brief ceremonies.

The destroyer Evans, named for the late Rear Admiral Robley D. (Fighting Bob) Evans, will be sponsored by Mrs. Charlotte Evans Isherwood, his daughter and the wife of Commander H. Isherwood, of the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve. The ship will hit the water a month ahead of schedule.

Convicted Nazi Shielder Appeals to U. S. Court

CINCINNATI, Sept. 29.—(U.)—Max Stephan, Detroit restaurateur sentenced to hang November 13 for treason, appealed to the United States circuit court of appeals today, contending that sentence was "cruel and unusual" and "not in line with testimony and evidence" in the case.

Stephan was convicted of harboring and aiding Lieutenant Hans Peter Krug, a German pilot who escaped from a Canadian prison camp.

In all, Stephan cited 14 reasons for appeal, including contentions that the charge of treason was unfounded in fact and that "inflammatory remarks" to the jury by the United States district attorney were "highly prejudicial" to Stephan's rights.

Outlawed Irish Army Getting 'Overseas' Arms

LONDON, Sept. 29.—(P)—Home Office Undersecretary Osbert Peake said in the house of commons today that the outlawed Irish republican army in northern Ireland was known to have been receiving weapons from "countries overseas" in recent years.

He said authorities "had no information to confirm" reports that a recent IRA attack on police officers was carried out with British-manufactured weapons.

Decision in Heated Senate Parity Fight Is Expected Today

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP)—With tempers frayed and nerves frizzled, the senate tonight deferred until tomorrow a final decision of the farm price controversies tied up in the anti-inflation bill. With its action, any lingering hope that the legislation might be enacted by October 1, the deadline fixed by President Roosevelt, disappeared.

WAR MANPOWER MAN
—Dillard B. Lasseter, former Georgia director of the NYA and at present deputy national administrator of the agency, has been named regional director of the War Manpower Commission in Washington. He will speak at the fair here Saturday.

D. B. Lasseter Is Named To Manpower Post

Georgian To Maintain Relationship With NYA.

Another Georgian was moved high into the nation's war councils this week when Dillard B. Lasseter, deputy administrator of the National Youth Administration, was made regional director of the War Manpower Commission for Region 4, with headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Lasseter, a native of Vienna, Ga., also will have national duties in the Manpower Commission and will maintain his relationship with the NYA, a component unit of WMC.

He will come here to speak Saturday night at the Southeastern World's Fair as the representative of the War Manpower Commission, on "Youth and the Manpower Picture."

The new manpower executive became Georgia director of the National Youth Administration in 1936 and served in this capacity until his appointment in Washington as NYA deputy administrator in March 1940. Under his administration, the program of the NYA in Georgia became known as one of the best in the nation.

A graduate of Emory University in the class of 1933, Lasseter received his master's degree at New York University. A volunteer in the British Army—he couldn't wait for America to get into World War I—he rose to be a major. He spent many years after the war in the American consular service in China, Manchuria, and Japan, "for holding executive positions in the textile industry in this country."

While state director for the Youth Administration here, Lasseter was a member of the faculty of Emory University in the department of public affairs and helped to develop a unique system of internship in public offices for university students.

AUREX HELPS HEARING

During the day, the farm bloc by a vote of 48 to 43, wrote its higher farm parity price levels into the measure. Then, it began a determined, but apparently losing fight to keep its amendment in the bill.

Immediately after the vote, Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, the administration leader, proposed a compromise substitute. A majority of the senate, including many who voted for the farm bloc amendment, were reported pledged to support it.

Barkley, moreover, called for a night session and twice proposed limitations of debate. One was aimed at getting a final vote tonight. The other at passing the legislation early tomorrow. Both were wrecked by the objection of Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, co-author with Senator Hatch, Democrat, New Mexico, of the farm bloc amendment.

A heated debate on the question of holding a night session or adjourning revealed the taut state of senatorial nerves after a week spent debating an issue many senators have predicted would precipitate a constitutional crisis.

Situation Complicated.
Finally Barkley agreed that continuing the session would result only in "further fraying of frayed nerves," and consented to end debate for the day at that point. The senate will meet an hour earlier than usual tomorrow and Barkley said he would try again to obtain a debate limitation.

The situation had been complicated, however, by the presentation of another amendment by Senator Hatch.

The result was that the senate will vote first upon the Hatch amendment, a proposal that the President, in fixing farm prices, take all farm production costs into account, and make certain they are reflected in the price ceilings he establishes.

Next will come the compromise proposal backed by the administration leadership. It provides that after ceiling prices have been established, the President shall adjust them in such a manner that they reflect the increased cost of farm labor.

If it is adopted, and the leadership claims a wide majority for it, the Thomas-Hatch amendment will be stricken automatically from the bill.

Vexatious Problem.
The latter would require that farm labor costs be included in the computation of parity farm price levels, and that no ceilings be fixed at a point lower than the newly determined parity. Administration men have fought the Thomas-Hatch amendment vigorously on the ground it would raise living costs by $3,500,000,000 and make stabilization impossible.

In advance of the vote, the new Hatch amendment presented the leadership with a vexatious problem. It is a proposal that has long held an attraction for farm state senators. Overnight, the administration leaders were busy trying to head off a growing move for its adoption.

In any event, the final enactment of the bill by October 1 had, administration leaders conceded, become impossible.

The leaders hoped the President's deadline was approximate. In setting the deadline, Mr. Roosevelt said that if no adequate legislation reached him by October 1, he would act independently under his wartime powers to stabilize the cost of living.

Ominous Background.
If the Thomas-Hatch amendment remains in the bill, or possibly the Hatch amendment, Mr. Roosevelt's friends at the capitol expect him to veto the measure, and simultaneously order prices and wages stabilized, thus creating an open conflict with the legislative branch of the government.

This possibility has provided a deeply ominous background for the senate debate, and has found expression in open assertions that the issue would create a disunity harmful to the war effort.

Barkley, in a tense two-hour speech today, said he was supporting the administration compromise through a desire to preserve the legislative process. If congress enacts a bill the President finds he must veto, Barkley said, then congress will "either have to abandon the legislation or eat crow by going out and passing legislation which the President will accept."

Barkley contrasted the disputing in congress with the action of American fighting men at the front.

"Before this war is over," he said, "they may be fighting step by step, foot by foot, porch by porch, room by room, in France, in Germany, or in Tokyo."

"How miserable and cheap we must look to them to be afraid to face a popgun on the home front." Observing that he was unable to gauge the influence of the coming elections on the congressional controversy, Barkley referred again to the nation's fighting forces:

"We have asked them to give their lives, that's all we've asked of them—just to give their lives—in the name of victory, of humanity, of democracy."

"God help us, if they come back to find that any group has used the war to benefit (itself)."

VICTORY VISTA—Deadly attack bombers are poised over work carriages in the final assembly department of one of Douglas Aircraft Company's California plants while workers ride along as they put finishing touches on these American "Havocs." British designate the plane the "Boston." On many Allied fronts the Havoc is demonstrating daily its superiority over anything the Germans have produced.

of farm prices did not change between mid-August and mid-September, remaining at 107 per cent of parity.

Farmers received higher prices in mid-September than a month earlier for grains, cotton, tobacco, fruits, dairy and poultry products. However, declines in prices received for meat animals, truck crops and other products offset these increases, keeping the index of prices received the same as a month ago at 163 per cent of the 1909-14 base period.

The index of prices farmers paid, including interest and taxes, remained at 152 as on August 15.

The department said farm produce prices for the first nine months of 1942 have averaged 31 per cent higher than in the same period of 1941. Factory payrolls, it said, averaged 36 per cent higher for the first seven months of this year.

Priorities Lack Threat to Dixie Paper Factory

'Spite Work' Is Blamed at SNPA Meeting in Hot Springs.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Sept. 29. (AP)—The Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association heard today that for lack of priorities to complete an addition that is already 89.2 per cent finished, the Southland Paper Mill at Lufkin, Texas, may have to close within a year.

The mill manufactures newsprint from southern slash pine by a process developed by the late Dr. Charles Herty, Georgia scientist.

"There is only one hope left," said John D. Ewing, Shreveport Times. "Where persuasion doesn't count, sometimes senatorial influence does."

He urged the publishers to insist their senators and representatives put pressure on the War Production Board to grant priorities. The Texas congressional delegation, he said, was "outraged."

Reviewing history of the predicament, Ewing said the mill had been buying chemical pulp from a private corporation which gave notice last year that it would have to discontinue supplying it effective in January, 1943. Southland's officers decided to build their own chemical pulp plant. They obtained ed priorities December 4, 1941, started work, priorities expired June 30 and they have been unable to get an extension.

Ewing blamed two WPB officials "who are from northern paper states and who are northern paper men" and said "It's been intimated that it is spite work because of the old antagonism of the northern paper men toward this southern mill."

MAJOR SUTHERLAND VISITOR

Major Carl T. Sutherland, on military leave of absence as city personnel director, yesterday visited the Atlanta city hall. He has been reassigned and will assume a command in Mississippi after his furlough, which he is spending in Atlanta. Since leaving his post here, he was assigned to duty in Washington and also in the east.

C. L. Eddleman Dies at Age of 53

Clarence L. Eddleman, 53, of 718 Argonne avenue, N. E., Atlanta restaurant operator, died yesterday in a private hospital, after a short illness.

A native of Atlanta, he is survived by his wife; two daughters, Miss Evelyn Eddleman and Mrs. D. D. Cousins, of Louisville, Ky.; a sister, Mrs. E. C. Burgess, of Jacksonville, Fla.; two brothers, W. E. Eddleman, a member of the Atlanta police department, and Roy Eddleman.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the chapel of Harry G. Poole, with the Rev. Theodore S. Will and the Rev. Lester Rumble officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery.

Ann Sheridan's Split With George Brent A Lover's Quarrel?

By Louella O. Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD. The widely publicized Ann Sheridan-George Brent marriage of less than a year has ended. In a broken voice George told this writer he and Ann had separated Sunday night.

"It is the last thing in the world I wanted," said George, "but I don't see what I can do about it. She wants her freedom, and she is going to issue a statement explaining that our marriage is finished."

Ann says that it is George who wants a separation, and so she is going to give it to him. I told her it sounded to me like a lover's quarrel and something which the two of them could straighten out if they would just sit down and talk things over.

"Perhaps there will be a reconciliation, but I doubt it," Ann said. "There doesn't seem a chance. I haven't seen George for a month and Sunday night when we were together we had a big misunderstanding, and George said he wanted his freedom, and so I am giving it to him."

"Will you get a divorce?" I asked her. Ann said she didn't know. George told me that he has been teaching flying every day at Oxnard, but that he had been given the day off.

"I just couldn't work," he said. "I was in such an unhappy frame of mind, he said he wanted to protect Ann with whom he says he is still in love and always will be. I must say, even though I had heard rumors of battles from time to time, I couldn't believe these two people who seemed so congenial and had been in love for the last three years, could end their marriage that promised so well, in just a few hours time.

The romance of Ann and George was front-page copy when they were married January 5, 1942, at the home of George's sister, Mrs. Sam Harris, in Florida. They flew out of Los Angeles in separate planes, meeting there. Ann had told the studio she was on her way to see her mother who was ill in Texas.

This is the second marriage for Ann and the third for George. The red-headed comely girl whom the Harvard Lampoon labeled "the worst actress of the year," and lived to eat its words, was first married to Eddie Norris. George was once the husband of Ruth Chatterton, famed actress, and for a brief period he was married to Constance Worth, also an actress.

Ann, who was ridiculed by so many of the critics when she first started in the movies, has made them all take back their criticisms, especially since "King's Row" when she all but stole the show. She is one of Warner's most valuable stars, in that she is boxoffice. George, too, has been one of Warner's most important stars, but he is giving it all up to go into the service. He has not yet been drafted, but he has a very strong conviction that a man's place at this time is in Uncle Sam's service.

ANN SHERIDAN.

MY DAY: The Armed Forces

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Monday.—I wonder how many people realize what it costs to teach someone things he should have learned in school, after he has come into the Army. Dr. Studebaker feels that even now this adult education should be done in the home communities before a man is taken into the Army.

There are some 240 men in Aberdeen, Md., Training Center who are going to school. Ordinance work requires an ability to read, because as one officer said, "if you can't read the marks on the ammunition boxes and you get the wrong ammunition, it is just the same as having none."

To be sure, a certain number of these troops, going to school, are colored men from the deep south, but there are also a considerable number of white men who are learning what they should have learned in primary grades—how to read and write and how to add and subtract.

Occasionally the difficulty lies in the fact that a man is a foreigner and does not speak English, or at least did not go to school in this country. One young man with whom I talked was born in Pennsylvania, another in New Jersey. The first boy's parents died when he was eight, and he went to work in a mines and has taken care of himself ever since, with the result that he has had four months of school in his life.

One man with graying hair, who told me he was 44 years old, was laboriously picking out letters from a pile in front of him to spell the word "dog." The group of officers teaching these men are really quite extraordinary. They have developed a remarkable system of visual aids. Many of them have had teaching experience in the past.

They try to keep the classes down to 10 or 12 and they give a great deal of individual attention to each pupil. But these pupils are costing us somewhere around $175 a month. Wouldn't it have been cheaper for all of us if we had seen that they had had decent education when they were young?

Illiteracy of this kind does not speak well for our type of civilization. Evidently it takes a war to show where we have been negligent in our duty to the people as a whole. I remember the last war and know that all this came up then. I wonder if we shall have more intelligence this time, or whether we shall forget again and continue to be penny-wise and pound-foolish.

General Simpson and Major F. A. Stutz, who were kind enough to look after us while we were in Aberdeen, certainly are doing remarkable training. I saw a review of some of the troops and much of the building which is going on, and marveled at the expansion which can be made while a comprehensive training program goes on.

Girls Should Help Boys Overcome Timidity

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie:

I am 16 years old and am considered very pretty, and have lots of dates. I went with Bill for awhile, but all of a sudden he stopped going with me. I see him almost every week, and he treats me very nice. Please tell me how to win him back from his present girl friend. Now, Jim is a good looking boy and seems to be very nice. I like him a lot and would love to go with him. He does not go with anyone, and I see him every weekend, but I would like to know how to get him to ask me for a date.

MARALINE.

If Bill suddenly stopped coming to see you to go with him, I think if I were you, you would not worry too much about it, because if he is so changeable, he will, no doubt, come back to you just as suddenly. Next time you see him, do not let him think that you are too lonely without him, but tell him that you have missed him and ask him how things are going with him and what he has been doing, but do not ask him to come back to see you. If he does not take the hint from these remarks, then let him alone and let him do what he wants to do about coming back.

As for Jim, he seems to be rather timid or shy, if he has been attentive to you and still has not asked you for a date. When you see him next time, be casual but definite and ask him to drop by to see you sometime, as you would love to have him. Get up a party for bowling or badminton or skating or something and ask him to join you. That will more or less break the ice and let him know that you would like to be with him. The boys need a little encouraging.

Sacro-Iliac, the Modern Version of a Crick in the Back

By Dr. William Brady.

In some ways I'm quite human. When I have a pain or anything like that it is always a tremendous affair. There was the time when I had appendicitis.

Here in my playroom I'm always heaving heavy desks, book cases, filing cabinets hither and yon. Usually I have sense enough to squat and do any heavy lifting with my legs. But one of these danged desks weighs a ton or so and is so built that you can't get a hold on it when you squat, so I just bent down on it and hoisted it in the wrong way. Wow! For an instant I feared—but, shucks, it wasn't really half as bad as many such cases are, for I was able to straighten up in a few minutes and merely missed the afternoon on the bowling green.

A crick in the back. Subluxation of the sacro-iliac synchondrosis, slipped innominate (this is a name the osteopaths used to apply to the trouble in the days before the medical practitioners knew the pathology of the condition). A sprain or strain of the juncture (it isn't a joint, because there is no cartilage in it) between the sacrum or base of the spine and the wing of the innominate or hip bone.

There is no cartilage between the sacrum and the innominate bones. And we need make no bones of saying that anyone with such a painful, disabling crick in the back will get the best treatment, the quickest relief, if he or she lies right away to a good osteopath. If any of the medical brethren object to this, we'll give them a courteous hearing. But in all candor we must admit that the osteopaths recognized and successfully treated the rather common sacro-iliac strain long before even elementary consideration of it appeared in medical literature or effective treatment in medical practice.

Incidentally, it is high time that regular physicians and osteopathic physicians drop their little jealousies and get together in a spirit of fellowship, for their own good and the good of the public.

Once upon a time when I was a member of the three-man censorship committee of the college of medical society another member and I procured and approved the application of an osteopath for membership. The osteopath had had the same years of schooling and had passed the same state board examination for a license as we had. Furthermore, he was a man of unimpeachable ethical principles and indeed many good medical practitioners, members of the medical society regularly consulted with him in everyday practice. But when the application was submitted to the society for a vote, two members voted to accept and all the other members cordially rejected the application. That was a long while ago, but I can see little improvement in the breadth of the prevailing medical vision today.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Meat Inspection.

Are you not mistaken when you say that much meat in local markets everywhere is not government inspected? (G. B. B.)

Answer—Considerable meat is home-grown and sold in the local markets in small communities in many parts of the country is not government inspected. Inspected meat, however, is the best protection against disease or parasitic infection in meat.

Color Blindness.

Can you advise me whether vitamin A has any effect on color blindness? (A. J. C.)

Answer—Not on congenital (inherited, present at birth) color blindness. It might be beneficial on some cases of acquired color blindness. In any case it can do no harm to try it out—that is, try taking, say, 50,000 units of natural vitamin A daily for at least a month.

Unna's Paste Boot.

I have varicose ulcer and my sister tells me you recommended a kind of boot made of unna ointment. (MRS. W. M.)

Answer—Unna's paste dressing. Use of it described in pamphlet "Varicose Veins and Varicose Ulcers" for copy send stamped envelope bearing your address.

Dandruff.

Is any vitamin thought to affect chronic dandruff? (J. M., D. A.)

Answer—No telling what isn't thought. Send stamped envelope bearing your address, for pamphlet "Care of the Hair and Control of Dandruff."

Diet Helps To Fight Colds in October

By Ida Jean Kain.

We are just going into the cold season. Statistics show that we average more colds in October than any other month. The cost per year is 'way up in the millions for doctor bills, medicines and time lost from work. This year, the time lost from work is the thing we can't afford!

When you feel a cold coming on, stay home and go to bed. Going to bed for one day may be enough to nip it. If it's your husband who is catching cold, you may have a time convincing him that he is not being a sissy to stay away from work. A man always likes to work as usual and "throw a cold off." But when he waits until he is forced to take to his bed, he doesn't recover as quickly and so loses more time than necessary. And that is not the worst—in the meantime he passes the germ along to the people in the office or defense plant where he works.

Here is why a cold is so catching: If you have a cold, you release tiny droplets into the air every time you sneeze, or talk or cough. The cold bug can remain in the air as many as five hours before losing its sting! Then, too, you can hand the germ along with a handshake, leaving your drinking glass where it can be used before it is scalded, or by kissing someone.

You not only protect others by staying away from them, but you give yourself a better chance at a quick recovery by going to bed in the early stages. One prominent physician advises going to bed even though it is only for a few hours, and placing hot packs over the nose and forehead. He says not to "doctor" yourself with all kinds of medicines, but to drink gallons of water, preferably hot, and to gargle every hour with hot salt water—use one-half teaspoon of salt to a glass of hot water.

Prevention, of course, is better. Our fuel oil conservation may turn out to be a help in this respect. Colds are caught more easily in hot, stuffy rooms. At home the heat should never be higher than 68 degrees, and in workrooms and bedrooms should be cooler than that. Moisture is important, too. The humidity should be between 40 and 55. Air that is too dry affects the nasal passages and makes you more susceptible.

There are a lot of precautions that will help you dodge colds. It's not getting your feet wet as much as letting them stay wet that brings you down with the sniffles. Try to avoid sitting in a draft.

Your diet can be controlled and it has a lot to do with your resistance to colds. Avoid too many sweets and pastries and overeating. You've noticed you often catch cold after holidays of too hearty eating. Use plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables, and cooked and raw green and yellow vegetables, so that your diet is not too heavy but high in vitamins.

While it is not a panacea for colds, Vitamin A is a factor in building up your resistance. The average requirement is 6,000 units. It is easy for you to get this every day in your pint of milk, green leafy vegetable, green salad, egg and butter. But if you seem to catch cold easily, or if you have a job that sends you out into all kinds of weather or requires you to sleep on trains, you would get additional protection from the daily use of a concentrate containing 10,000 units of Vitamin A and 400 units of Vitamin D.

Send a large stamped return envelope for the "Count Your Vitamin Chart," which conveniently lists the foods that promote health and resistance to the cold bug.

Today's Charm Tip.

It is most inconsiderate to demand instant attention in a beauty salon when you arrive 15, 20, 30 minutes late yourself.

Course in U. S. Recipes Will Be Given British

LONDON, Sept. 29.—(AP)—British housewives are going to be taught how to prepare Johnny cake and apple pie so they can make United States soldiers feel at home when they invite them to dinner.

The ministry of food announced today a plan for a demonstration tour of the country to familiarize housewives with recipes from the United States.

You Women Who Suffer From HOT FLASHES then CHILLY FEELINGS

If you—like so many women between the ages of 38 and 52—suffer from hot flashes, weak, dizzy, nervous feelings, distress of "irregularities," or blue at times—due to the functional middle age period in a woman's life—try taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once. It's the best known medicine you can buy that's made especially for women.

Pinkham's Compound is famous to relieve such distress. Taken regularly—it helps build up resistance against such annoying symptoms. It also is a fine stomachic tonic.

Thousands upon thousands of women—rich and poor alike—have reported benefits. Time and again Lydia Pinkham's Compound has proved some women's happiest days often can be during their "40's." Follow label directions. Worth trying!

Popular Matron's Birthday Is Packed With Surprises

By SALLY FORTH.

● ● ● LAST SUNDAY is a day that Mrs. Evan McConnell will never forget, for it was one filled with delightful surprises. It so happened that the date marked her birthday anniversary, besides having been the one chosen by members of the fashionable Tuxedo Hunt Club to elect new officers for the year. Since she was the retiring secretary and treasurer (and the only feminine officer), she waved aside a birthday celebration in order to attend the meeting.

The first surprise came when she was re-elected to fill her office. Dr. Bernard L. Shackelford having been elected president, and George Couch as vice president.

The second surprise came when the club presented her with a handsome Old English vegetable dish, a similar gift having also been given to Goodloe Yancey, the popular retiring president.

But climaxing the occasion and the surprises was the presentation of another vegetable dish to Mrs. McConnell, a birthday gift from Mr. and Mrs. Yancey, making a matched pair. For entirely through coincidence, both vegetable dishes, although not purchased at the same store and bought unaware that there was to be another given, are identical in shape and design.

The Tuxedo Hunt Club parties are famous for their cleverness, and the spirit of camaraderie pervading them makes them outstanding. One of the highlights of Sunday's gathering was the announcement of two social affairs to be given by the club within the next several weeks.

The first of these will be the club's annual Halloween party to be held at the clubhouse on Blackland road. And the second will be an early morning ride and hunt breakfast at which the members will entertain on Thanksgiving Day.

● ● ● The Better Films Committee should be congratulated, not only for assembling over 400 men and women for its victory bond luncheon yesterday, but for combining on its program two such scintillating personalities as Veronica Lake and Mrs. J. R. B. Branch. Of course, petite, blond Veronica scintillates with a professional touch, from the celebrated blond lock that falls intriguingly over her right eye to the tips of her tiny smartly-shod feet. She appeared at the luncheon hatless, as usual, and clad in a modish beige ensemble. And, of course, there were the ubiquitous orchids which seem to grow on the shoulders of glamor girls from Hollywood.

Incidentally, if you are curious about that patch of court plaster you saw on her forehead, it covers a battle scar, which she received riding in an Army jeep on her bond-selling campaign.

Mrs. Branch scintillates like a professional, too, but in quite a different manner. Tall, blond and trim-looking, she scintillates with a brilliant intellect, with a crisp, staccato voice, with a capability that speaks the force of culture and breeding. Though she has lived for 25 years in China, she is remembered in Georgia as the charming Erwin Pope, of Maccon. Her poignant appeal for the war-stricken people of her adopted home could not have failed to stir the hearts of her audience.

The victory motif was carried throughout the luncheon appointments, the symbol being traced in red and blue on the white table cloths, and the tables centered with red, white and blue flowers.

The Better Films Committee president, Mrs. S. D. Katz, who presided at the luncheon, accented her dark costume with a shoulder cluster of red and blue defense stamps encased in cellophane and tied with red, white and blue ribbons. She presented Mrs. Branch a spray of red gladioli, ageratum and tuberoses—to further carry out the patriotic note.

● ● ● IN A RECENT letter, the former Eleanor Stafford, who married Lieutenant Hal W. Lamb three weeks ago, wrote one of her best friends:

"We are now living at the Royal Palm hotel in Fort Myers (Florida), and I am the only girl on the floor with ten very attractive lieutenants. They have no one to look after them, so I send out all their laundry and darn all their socks. I really feel like a 'house mother' at a fraternity house."

"Then when the boys have time off from military duty, I swim and fish with them. And often I wish some of my good friends from Atlanta would come down here and help me out. Besides being lots of fun, it is real USO work."

● ● ● LIEUTENANT HSUN-SHIANG HUANG, a young Chinese aviator whose recent accident brought him to Lawson General Hospital for recuperation, was one of the most interested visitors to the exhibit of Chinese art at the High Museum on Sunday.

Lieutenant Huang, who is with the U. S. Army Air Corps, is an artist himself and as he toured the exhibit rooms with Herbert Oliver, president of the Atlanta Art Association, he expressed the opinion that the Modern Art Study Group has assembled one of the finest collections of rare Chinese pieces he has seen anywhere outside of his native land. He was particularly impressed with the two very old Kakemonos on display and stated that his favorite single piece on exhibit is the Chinese Koro in the Chippendale cabinet, a four-inch sang de boeuf (ox blood) covered jar, with flame.

His superlative tribute as he left was, "This exhibit makes me very homesick."

Antique Lovers.

The Antique Lovers' Club of Decatur, will meet Thursday at 10:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Harrie Dews on South Candler street.

"Historical Points in DeKalb County" will be discussed by Mrs. James Gurren, chairman of the program. Mrs. Harrie Dews and Mrs. Leon O'Neal are arranging an exhibit at the Decatur Library this week in the Hattie Henderson Memorial case and the public is invited to view the antique glass and bric-a-brac.

Following the game was a handkerchief shower for the bride-elect. The hostess was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Ann Elkin Martin, and Mrs. Robert Ramspeck, mother of the bride-to-be. A series of parties will be given for Miss Ramspeck preceding her marriage to Lieutenant John Stratton Leedy at the Decatur Presbyterian church on October 10.

Parties Are Given For Bride-Elect

Miss Mimi Pappenheimer, whose engagement to Henry Van Platter Jr., United States Army Air Corps, was announced recently, continues to be entertained at a series of interesting informal parties prior to her marriage. Dr. and Mrs. William E. Campbell will entertain at dinner Thursday evening at their home on Wakefield drive in compliment to the popular bride-elect.

Next Friday Mrs. Edward S. Gay will be hostess at luncheon at her home on Peachtree Memorial drive in Miss Pappenheimer's honor.

Miss Martha Blalock was hostess recently at a beautifully appointed dinner for the bride-elect. She entertained at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Blalock, on Argonne drive, and was assisted in entertaining by her mother. Covers were laid for 18 guests, who included friends of the honor guest.

12 P. M.—Midway closes.

A handsome, young Russian Army officer—Captain Yuri Vladimirov—veteran of the Moscow campaign, decorated for heroism in battle and wearing a parachute insignia, last night was cheered by Southeastern fair goers when he was introduced as the Soviet Union's first American people and faith in American armies will eventually drown Hitler in his own blood.

Speaking in front of the Lakewood grandstand during the United Nations Military Review, which yesterday honored the Soviet Union, Captain Vladimirov, whose rank is equal to that of a major in the American Army, warned that the much talked about second front must come quickly, if the combined powers of Russia, America and Great Britain are to down Hitler.

"America and England have precious time in which to prepare, but one must not forget that every week, every day, every hour means blood spilled and death to thousands of soldiers courageously dying at their posts. If you wish to know what the Russian people think about the second front, just ask a twice-wounded soldier who is lying in a trench on the Russo-German front," the Red army officer said.

Women Guerillas.

Before addressing the audience, the Russian captain, only 25 years old and the father of two sons, dwelled at length on the situation in general back home. He has been in America only four months.

Russian women, he said, are playing a great part in the war. They operate the locomotives, clear debris after an air raid, and even engage in hand-to-hand combat with enemy troops when a town is attacked. Their value as guerillas is unexcelled, he said.

Looking forward to the long winter months when Hitler's armies would find the going a bit tougher, Vladimirov recalled several years of hard training he underwent to win his commission at the Moscow Academy. "We would march for 30 to 40 miles in temperature ranging as low as 50 below. If one of the soldiers would close his eyes for even a second they would become frozen together. If he tried to warm them with his hand, his hand would become frozen to his face."

Then, with a soldierly grin, he remarked: "The Germans have not yet learned to spit icicles." He was the official representative of the Russian embassy in Washington to the Southeastern World's Fair. He addressed the Kiwanis Club yesterday after-

Third Georgian Is Awarded Coveted Insurance Citation

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Sept. 29.—Georgia increased its national lead again this week when Sidney O. Smith, civic leader here, became the third Georgian to receive the coveted Woodworth memorial testimonial, conferred by the National Association of Insurance Agents "for meritorious service to his profession."

The award has been presented only 15 times and Georgians have received it three of those times. W. E. (Eugene) Harrington, of Atlanta, won it in 1934 and Hamilton C. Arnall, of Newnan, and a cousin of Ellis Arnall, received it in 1935. It is named in honor of the late Claudius H. Woodworth, of Buffalo, second president of the national association.

Smith was named recipient this year because of his services in collecting a fund to support the new American Institute for Property & Liability Underwriters which is seeking to have future agents complete a course in college and receive a degree in much the same way as that now gotten by doctors or lawyers.

Smith served as president of the association about two years ago.

Civil Air Patrol

'Raids' Fairground

The Atlanta squadron of the Civil Air Patrol yesterday dropped thousands of circulars on the Lakewood fairgrounds advising the urgent need for war workers under the Civil Service Commission.

Squadron Commander Leo S. Bosarge made the trip with the flight, which dropped 25,000 leaflets.

A Civil Service Commission booth was set up in the United Nations building at the fair to interview the many persons who received the leaflets. The circulars instructed workers to apply at the booth.

WALDRIP REUNION.

Annual reunion of descendants of J. T. Waldrip will be held Sunday at Grant park. More than 200 members of the family will attend, and they are to assemble at the pavilion.

noon and visited Fort McPherson and the Cyclorama afterward.

Brigadier General Carlisle H. Wash, commanding general of the Third United States Army Air Forces, Tampa, Fla., will address the grandstand crowds at the Southeastern fair at 8 o'clock tonight. The patriotic fireworks display will follow.

Today has been set aside in honor of America's airmen and the 4-H Clubs of Georgia.

Judging of Guernsey cattle and 4-H boys' and girls' team demonstrations will take place at 10 o'clock this morning in the two administration buildings.

Irving Melcher's dance orchestra will play from 9:30 o'clock until 11:30 o'clock in the United Nations building and the midway shows and rides will open at 10 o'clock this morning.

Radio Network To Be Erected For CD Use

Amateur Operators To Run System, Set Up in Five Counties.

A radio communications system will be set up in the five counties of the metropolitan area for use in carrying civilian defense messages in the event of an air raid.

The network, to be operated by amateur operators, is being planned and supervised by Philip F. Jones Jr., recently appointed radio aide to George M. Phillips, area director for civilian defense.

The two-way communications system would be used if the telephone lines were knocked out by bombing and for keeping up with large fires, evacuations, etc.

Mobile units in automobiles and those carried by the operators themselves—walkie-talkies—will supplement the sending and receiving sets between control centers throughout the area, Jones said.

"For instance, if there is a big fire, we could send a man straight to it, and through the radio in the automobile or on an operator's shoulders we could keep in contact with the control center, reporting progress," Jones said.

Main obstacle in the organization of the system is lack of materials for making the two-way sets, Jones pointed out. "You have to have a top priority rating for most of the things and you cannot get other parts at all," he explained. "We can make the sets from parts of old radios and we're hoping Atlanta's supply enough for us to build the number we need."

Jones may be telephoned at J.A. 7311. He said operators would pick up the old radios.

He's also eager to get the personnel it will take for the system, and anyone interested in radio is asked to call him.

New Kirkwood Library Opens Doors Today

City Officials, Civic Club Take Part in Dedication.

The Kirkwood branch of the Carnegie Library will open for business at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon following dedicatory exercises last night in which city officials, members of council and civic club members of the community participated.

Alderman Ed A. Gilliam was in charge of the dedication program, which included talks by Mayor Hartsfield, Councilmen George B. Lyle, Joe Allen and Roy Bell, and Sherwood Astin, chairman of the Carnegie Library board of trustees. Music was furnished by the Murphy Junior High school orchestra.

The branch, a brick veneer structure, was erected at a cost of about $14,700, and has a capacity of approximately 6,000 volumes. It is located on Kirkwood road opposite Bessie Branham park.

1,600 Americans In Occupied France Seized as Reprisal

VICHY, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The Germans have arrested about 1,600 Americans, including 350 women and 1,250 men, in occupied France, according to unofficial estimates tonight.

Three Billion Is Sought For Navy Planes

New Aircraft Vital for War, Roosevelt Asserts.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(P)—To build thousands of new Navy planes, President Roosevelt today asked Congress for an immediate appropriation of $2,862,000,000, which would send the current fiscal year's outlay for the sea service to a record of approximately $20,000,000,000.

In a brief memorandum to Speaker Rayburn, the President concurred in a Budget Bureau assertion that the new planes were essential for "the prosecution of the war."

Neither the Chief Executive nor the Budget Bureau gave any details of how many planes the extra funds would provide, but Appropriations Committee members, who were expected to approve the request quickly along with approximately $4,000,000,000 for other emergency items, estimated it would add in the neighborhood of 14,000 planes to the Navy's air force.

The plane expansion program is in line with the policy recently enunciated by Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, of the House Naval Committee, emphasizing carriers and carrier-based aircraft in preference to huge battleships. Recent congressional acts have authorized vast expansion of the carrier fleet and protective craft such as submarines and swift destroyers.

This program was given impetus during the day when Lieutenant Commander John S. Thach, third decorated for his work as leader of a squadron of Navy fighter planes in the Pacific, said at a Navy Department press conference that only carrier-based aircraft could clear the way for invasion and defeat of Japan.

Horizontal bombers, Thach asserted, cannot do the job, "not one major ship in this war" having been sunk by horizontal bombing as contrasted to dive and torpedo bombing. He emphasized his assertion that the way for invasion and defeat of Japan.

Thach said he was convinced that "with a couple of dozen aircraft carriers and supporting task force units, and with enough Marines to carry out landings," the United States could "cut a path across the Pacific and cut it quickly, right to Japan."

"And we can make it stick," Thach added.

Thach said carrier-based dive bombers, with carrier-based fighter protection, had dealt the decisive blows in the Battle of Midway, in which he participated.

"You heard my story," he replied when asked whether he thought the part played by the Army's Flying Fortresses in the Midway fight was insignificant.

Only last week the President asked Congress for $2,731,134,303 for miscellaneous additional expenses of the Navy, including $100,000,000 for arming merchant vessels.

R. A. Greene Heads Printers' Group

MACON, Ga., Sept. 29.—(P)—R. A. Greene, of Columbus, today was elected president of the Georgia Printing Trades Conference at the last session of the semi-annual meeting here.

Greene succeeds J. R. Barrows, of Atlanta.

Charles M. Cregar, of Savannah, was elected first vice president, succeeding Mrs. C. W. Burnett, of Macon, and Guy Moore, of Atlanta, was selected second vice president. He succeeds H. L. Davis, of Columbus. C. B. McCook, of Macon, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

The association's next meeting will be held here in March.

Nazis Claim 4 Americans Captured After Raid

LONDON, Sept. 29.—(P)—The Bremen radio reported that four Americans were among prisoners taken Saturday when 12 planes were shot down by anti-aircraft guns during an RAF raid on Occupied France.

The German station listed the Americans as follows:

Silvery Barton Carney Succumbs at Marietta

MARIETTA, Ga., Sept. 29.—Funeral services were held Sunday from the chapel of Mayes Ward & Company for Silvery Barton Carney, 65, resident of Roseland street, who died Friday of a heart attack. The Rev. J. W. Reeves officiated. Interment was in the Olive Springs cemetery.

Surviving him are his wife, one daughter, Mrs. J. C. Atkins, of Atlanta; two sons, John L. Carney, of Mobile, Ala.; Ernest Carney, of Marietta; three brothers, Raymond Carney, of Marietta; Monroe Carney and Chester Carney, of Hugo, Okla.

Makin Attack Reported Fatal To Atlantan

Clyde Thomason Jr.,
Marine Corps Sergeant,
Native of City.

Clyde Thomason Jr., a Marine Corps sergeant and the son of Mrs. Aline A. Thomason and the late Clyde A. Thomason, of 575 McAfee street, N. W., was reported killed in action during the attack on Makin island in the South Pacific, it was learned here last night.

The death of Thomason was reported by a combat correspondent of the Marines in a message to his headquarters at Washington.

A native of Atlanta, Thomason was graduated from the Jesup High school in 1931. He enlisted in the Marine Corps in 1934 and had seen eight years of continuous service, including three and one-half years in China.

He served as an orderly on the flagship Augusta to Admiral Yarnell.

Re-enlisting last January, he returned to the Marine base at San Diego, Cal., and was in training with a unit in which the then Captain James Roosevelt, son of the President, was second in command.

Roosevelt, now a Marine major, also participated in the attack on Makin Island.

The correspondent wrote:

"Thomason was killed by enemy machineguns while directing the fire of his section. Earlier in the battle, he had proven himself a hero. A Jap sniper, operating out of a grass shack, was holding up the advance of his men. Gun in hand, Thomason slipped up to the shack, kicked in the door and blasted the sniper, allowed his men to advance."

The Atlantan was a member of the crack "Raider Battalion," the dispatch said, which was commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Evans F. Carlson, with Major Roosevelt second in command. The attack occurred August 17 and 18.

Hitler To Address Mass Rally Today

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), Sept. 29.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler will address a mass meeting of the National Socialist Party at 6 p. m. Wednesday (noon, E. W. T.) on the occasion of the opening of the 1942-43 German winter relief campaign, it was announced tonight.

The announcement did not disclose the meeting place, but said all German radio stations would broadcast the speech.

(At a similar occasion a year ago, Hitler told a packed Sportsplatz that the Russian "enemy had been hit so hard that he never again will rise up.")

(In that speech, intended mainly to pep up the German people to a third winter of war, he admitted for the first time that he had made a mistake in not knowing "how awfully big were the preparations of the Russians for war.")

Covington Child Drowns in Pool

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. COVINGTON, Ga., Sept. 29.—Falling into a small fish pool beside his home last yesterday afternoon, Philip Johnson, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Johnson, drowned before being discovered.

The child, with several other children, was playing in the yard and, when he failed to come in at supper time, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson instituted a search and discovered their son's body in the pool.

Flying Fortress Crash Kills 12 Army Airmen

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The United States air base here announced today that a Flying Fortress on a routine flight crashed yesterday afternoon in the neighborhood of Guatemala City, killing 12 members of the Army Air Corps and injuring one severely.

The funeral of the dead was held this morning and was attended by President Jorge Ubico and high Guatemalan officials.

Rio de Janeiro Greets Secretary Frank Knox

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 29.—(P)—Frank Knox, United States Secretary of the Navy, arrived here today in a Navy seaplane and was greeted by Brazilian and U. S. officials.

Included in the welcoming party were Foreign Minister Oswaldo Aranha, Navy Minister Arlindo Guilherme, War Minister Eurico Gaspar Dutra and U. S. Ambassador Dr. Jefferson Caffery.

Bishop Arthur J. Moore, president of the North Georgia Methodist conference, is announced as the feature speaker at 8 o'clock tonight in the loyalty week services now in progress at the Collins Memorial Methodist church at Bolton.

Screaming Sirens To Mean Only Air Raid Alarm Soon

After Friday a siren in Atlanta will mean an air raid alarm—either another practice alarm or the real McCoy.

City fire fighting equipment will be stripped of sirens by Friday, Fire Chief C. C. Styron said at a meeting of the board of firemasters last night. Fire trucks and cars will race through the streets with horns blowing and bells clanging.

The sirens already have been removed from police cars and motorcycles and ambulances have been warned against using sirens. They sound too much like the air raid sirens.

NEVER SHAVED, LIVED LONG
LIVERPOOL.—John Kelley, who died here at 102, was a vegetarian, teetotaler, non-smoker and had never shaved in his life. He was a brother-in-law of Lord Wakefield.

Trade Outlook For Small Business In 1943 Called Grim

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Government economists advised senators today it would be better to provide for the orderly wartime liquidation of many small wholesale and retail businesses than to permit them to "continue profitless competition."

Most of Open Cotton To Be Picked Soon

Bulk of Crop To Be Beyond Storm Damage, Westbrook Says.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 29.—As the community cotton-picking plan spread to most north Georgia counties today, the State Agricultural Extension Service said that most of Georgia's $90,000,000 crop will be out of reach of storm damage by the end of the week, because the bulk of that now open will be picked.

A few counties may not be able to get their entire crops out for another week, according to E. C. Westbrook, specialist with the Extension Service, but they will have enough of the lint gathered within the next four days so that a rain-storm would not be disastrous.

At least four counties—Barrow, Hart, Carroll and Madison—closed down all business establishments today to help the farmers, Westbrook said. Winder alone sent 1,800 school children, housewives, barbers, bankers and professional men to help Barrow planters.

Jackson, Lincoln and Haralson counties have started school holidays until the cotton is in. Elberton closed shop today to aid and Stephens county is planning a picking holiday tomorrow, along with Fayette, where one of the first community work plans were initiated last week. Barnesville, in Lamar county, the father of the victory harvest drive, also was reported planning another holiday picking.

41 University Professors On Absence Leave

30 Faculty Members Enter Navy, Army, Defense Work.

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 29.—(AP)—Forty-one University of Georgia faculty members are on leaves of absence and of that number, 30 have entered the Navy, Army or some type of defense work, it was revealed today.

Twelve faculty members have been lost by the Arts and Science Department alone, all but four being away from the school because of military reasons.

Next highest loser is the College of Agriculture which has given eight men, seven of whom are engaged in Army, Navy or defense work. Lumpkin Law School, the College of Business, College of Education, School of Forestry and the Henry W. Grady School of Journalism have also lost faculty members to defense work or to the armed forces.

Only 12 new members have been added to the faculty, the decrease in enrollment due to the war necessitating a reduction in the number of instructors.

Mrs. Sarah F. Mott

Dies at Age of 67
Mrs. Sarah F. Mott, 67, died last night at a private hospital, after a long illness.

Survivors include a son, Albert L. Mott; two brothers, R. A. and Newton Tweedy, of New Orleans, La.; and a sister, Mrs. M. A. Spence, of Columbus.

Funeral rites will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Brown Memorial Baptist church, with the Rev. John R. Darnell officiating. Burial will be in Hollywood cemetery.

W. S. Gifford To Head 1943 Red Cross Fund

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Chairman Norman H. Davis, of the American Red Cross, today announced the appointment of Walter S. Gifford, of New York, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, as chairman of the 1943 Red Cross War Fund.

The fund campaign will get under way next March. The first campaign this year raised more than $70,000,000.

Legislative Act Is Needed in Grady Transfer

Tentative January Opening Receives Setback at Meeting.

Operation of Grady hospital under the Metropolitan Hospital Authority, tentatively set to begin early in January, received a setback last night when it was covered that an act must be passed by the state legislature so that Fulton county can include its pro rata share of the expense in its budget.

The discovery was made at a dinner given by Thomas K. Glenn, hospital chairman, for members of the Fulton and DeKalb county commissions.

DeKalb county officials already have signed a contract with the hospital authority, Glenn reported, and Fulton county is expected to agree to the plan as soon as the legislature makes the necessary amendment in the budget law.

The hospital authority was created by an act of the state legislature giving political subdivisions the right to contract with it and to levy taxes for its maintenance. Under the present plan Grady will become the nucleus of a hospital system to care for residents of the entire Atlanta metropolitan area. Glenn said the authority expects to take over operation of the hospital about January 1.

Admiral Leahy Listed Ranking U. S. Officer on Chiefs of Staffs

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The Office of War Information today listed Admiral William D. Leahy, in his position as chief of staff to the commander in chief of the United States Army and Navy, as the ranking American officer on the combined chiefs of staff of the United States and Great Britain.

The listing was given in the United States government manual for the fall, with Admiral Leahy first among the United States members.

Other United States members, in order listed, are: General George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the Army; Admiral E. J. King, commander in chief of the United States fleet and chief of naval operations; and Lieutenant General H. H. Arnold, commanding general of the Army air forces.

British members are: Field Marshal Sir John Dill, Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, Lieutenant General G. N. Macleod and Air Marshal D. C. S. Eville. The manual said the purpose of the requirements for overseas transportation based on approved strategic priority.

Nimitz and Arnold

In Pacific Conference

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—(AP)—The Navy announced tonight that Admiral C. W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet; Lieutenant General H. H. Arnold, commanding general of the Army Air Forces, and Vice Admiral Robert L. Ghormley, commander of the South Pacific area, had been "in conference somewhere in the Pacific."

The disclosure came in a terse announcement that the three high-ranking officers had jointly expressed their "admiration and congratulations" to Major General A. A. Vandegrift, U. S. Marine Corps, for the "remarkable performance of his fighters in destroying 33 enemy aircraft in attacks by the Japanese on Guadalcanal on September 27 and 28 without the loss of a single U. S. fighter."

Prompt action is necessary in replying to the attractive offers in the Want Ad pages of The Constitution.

Uncle Sam Says:

"STEP ON IT, AMERICA!"

... and the TRUCK LINES are doing their part. No Transportation System in the world feeds production lines such speed—such precision!

Only fast, efficient teamwork will put America in fighting trim in a hurry.

Take a simple thing like a time-fuse. Material and parts to make it come from fifteen widely-scattered plants all over the U. S. A. And a fuse is only one part of a shell.

LOAD THE PRODUCTION LINE WITH FUSES ... WHEN IT'S STARVING FOR FIRING PINS ... AND YOU COME FACE-TO-FACE WITH CONFUSION ... EXPENSE ... DELAYS. Yet how can you make sure each part hits your assembly line—on time—in the right quantity?

Modern business has found truck freight does it ... because trucks work exactly like a giant nation-wide conveyor system. SHIPMENTS ARRIVE IN A STREAM—NOT BY THE CARLOAD ... A STREAM THAT YOU CAN TURN ON FULL BLAST—QUICK—OR REDUCE TO A TRICKLE. Truck freight won't jam your platforms. It fits your schedule ... fits your plant facilities.

You can lick delays before they happen by specifying—"SHIP BY TRUCK!"

Government Freight has priority but the flexibility of Truck Transport gives commercial freight the same superior service.

This Message Presented by a Group of Leading and Progressive Truck Lines Operating in Georgia

TRUCK LINES KEEP 'EM ROLLING

WHEN YOU SEE A TRUCK THINK ABOUT THIS!

• In Georgia, for the last fiscal year, motor fuel and motor vehicle license taxes accounted for $26,513,152.62—or 52.3 per cent of the state's revenue receipts.

• Trucks operating in Georgia represent 17 per cent of the total motor vehicle registration and pay 35 per cent of the state's total motor vehicle taxes.

• The national average gasoline tax is 4.96 cents per gallon.

• The gasoline tax in Georgia is 7.5 cents per gallon—6 cents state tax and 1.5 cents federal tax.

• The large tractor semi-trailers used on the highways average four miles to the gallon—and consequently pay, in taxes 1½ cents for every mile they travel.

In the service they render and in the taxes they pay—truck lines earn your support and your friendship.
